Trailer Accident Near Cairo Bridge

Of the five accidents reported in Troop E area, only one was in this area during the past 24 hours. At 11:30 a.m. Monday about one mile west of the Cairo bridge on Highway 60, a 1960 Ford going west and driven by Alexandria Murphy, 16, Brookfield, Wisc., and a 1960 GMC tractor-trailer, driven by William Hunt, 27, Hayti, were the two vehicles involved.

Murphy was pulling a small camper trailer, when a wheel dropped off on the shoulder, causing the vehicle to lose control, sideswiped the trailer, went down the levee and overturned. No one was injured in the accident.

Two Sikeston Men Identify Fugitive

Fugitive Leslie Douglas Ashley, an escapee from a Texas mental hospital, charged with murder for which he was given the death penalty, but placed in the institution for observation, was definitely identified by two service station attendants in Sikeston early Monday morning.

Charles O'Dell, 27, attendant at the Phillips 66 station near the Holiday Inn, told the following story:

"It was between 6:45 and 7 a.m. when a 'woman' drove into the station to have the car serviced. The party was at the station for five to ten minutes, but said very little during the time. I had a copy of the Daily Standard in the station of April 8, and at the time was looking at the classified section, and also noticed the wanted fugitive article.

"I did notice 'her' large hands, and the face features from the eyes down, and it made me wonder. The person did not come into the station, but walked to both sides of the station and back to the car, but did not go to the rest room."

She did ask a second attendant, James Mollineaux, if he had a missing wrist watch reported to him, as 'she' missed one when she drove into this station a week ago, after going to the rest room.

O'Dell added, "I could tell by her large hands there was something unusual about her, and the way she walked. She was dressed in a light tan blouse and blue shirt, and drove into the station in a 1963 two-door Dodge. As he drove out of the station and headed south, the driver kept looking back until he passed the Holiday Inn entrance. I also noticed there was a Memphis city sticker on the left side of the rear bumper, with a Tennessee license.

After the car left both attendants went back to the station and looked at the Daily Standard article and could see more features that they believed the person to be the wanted fugutive.

O'Dell called Sgt. Gene Harris almost an hour later, to relate the incident.

"We both became suspicious," said O'Dell, "and my mind seemed to freeze on this person, because he seemed such a distant type person. The more we saw the picture the more we became convinced and called the state partolman." Both men agreed that if they saw the 'man' or the car they could identify him without difficulty. "You just don't see such strange actions from a 'female', especially at a service station."

No further word has been heard about the stranger, either from the Troop E patrol, or the Arkansas patrol.

Poison Removed From Near New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Six tons of calcium arsenate, or a similar poisonous compound have been removed today from a dump, six miles northeast of New Madrid, according to the engineer of the state health division, Poplar Bluff, and Paul Sherrod, county administrator, New Madrid county health center.

The poisonous material has been stored temporarily in the old vacant Kroger building on Main street, where it will remain for a few weeks until Bill Sankpill, a member of the water pollution board, Jefferson City, can determine what should be done with it.

Others who helped clear the material away were, Bob Hendrickson, conservation agent, and Earl Washburn, of the county highway department.

A second quantity has been found, 15 miles southwest of New Madrid, near Tallapoosa. The arsenic poisoning, according to the officials, is believed to have been used for the spraying of cotton, and they believe that an outfit in this area went out of business, and had the materials on hand.

The poison, which was stored in large tin cans, as well as pasteboard boxes, has spilled open, and would have killed any livestock or wildlife that may come in contact with it.

It was learned that the arensic was dumped there two weeks ago, but the person was seen but not known. It was discovered Sunday, and an investigation begin immediately.

The location of the material was just across a levee near a large washout used for dumping trash, but a short distance from the Mississippi River overflow, which is now near the washout section, due to the highwater stage at present.

If the river had backed up to this area it would have spread poison over a wide area, and caused a heavy fish destruction once it went into the stream.

The water pollution board will determine what to do with the large amount of arsenic, and will have to be buried. Officials, however, stated it would not be buried in this locality.

In the interview with state and district officials, they asked that anyone finding such material at any time, to advise the sheriff's office or the health centers in the various counties.

The Poison stored in a warehouse in New Madrid awaiting disposal.

Educational Foundation Meets

The Sikeston Education Foundation will hold it's annual breakfast meeting this Saturday to elect directors and officers it was announced by President David E. Blanton.

In it's sixth year the Foundation has made over 90 loans to young people seeking college educations, Mr. Blanton reported, and repayments are being made on most of them.

Selection of young people to receive loans from the Foundation are made in consideration of three factors:

1. The ability of the applicant to maintain a better than average grade in solid subjects.
2. The financial need of the applicant.
3. The applicant must live within the geographical limits of school district R-6.

The Foundation was established through contributions of people interested in promoting better education for capable young people who were unable to go to college because of lack of money.

The Foundations needs more capital, says Mr. Blanton, and contributions will be gratefully accepted.

The Editor is in receipt of a communication from the Missouri Association for Social Welfare boosting House Bill 162 which is aid to the dependent children of the unemployed.

We have no objection to the passage of this bill, provided they remove from the rolls all of the illegitimates in each family or case beyond the first illegitimate child. If this bill does not do this, then we are not in favor of same, for at the present time, it is just pretty nigh impossible to secure anyone for common labor with all of the government handouts.

I'M MAD, TOO

"I'm mad, too," states A. E. Perkins, superintendent of the Idaho state police, "and each new needless death on the highways makes me madder."

Then he continues:

It could just be that you are the person who wrote me that letter the other day. You really told me off. You said one of my dumb state police had given you a ticket for speeding when you had a legitimate reason for being in a hurry.

According to your letter, which you didn't sign, you think the state police could make better use of its time by chasing down the real menaces to safety on the highways instead of bothering upstanding citizens like yourself.

Oh, you were quite indignant. You went on to say that you were on urgent business, that you never had been in an accident of your own making; that you are a fast driver but a safe driver and, moreover, that you are a more important man to the community than the stupid cop who gave you the ticket.

Well, now, let me tell you something. I'm mad, too. I'm mad all the time although my anger is not directed at you alone. So far as you're concerned, I'm happy that we were able to catch you in time. I hope we taught you a lesson, although I'm afraid we didn't. I hope we taught you something before you have to learn it the hard way in a hospital, or you wind up on a morgue slab.

It makes me feel good that we were able to slow you down before you killed yourself -- or maimed somebody else who was driving carefully to protect both himself and you, too!

What makes me mad? A lot of things. I'm burned up because people as intelligent as you sometimes behave like idiots. I've seen a lot in my service with the state police. I've had to look at things that would turn your stomach. They make me sick, too, because I'm not different from you except that it's my business to keep you alive while you're driving, even if I have to stop you and haul you off to jail.

I wouldn't have to be so harsh, perhaps, if you could see at first hand the murder and savage mutilation on our highways -- your highways.

I wish sometime you would have to go with me to the scene of an accident. I would like to make you stand, as I've had to do, and watch the pitiful flopping of a man dying in a barrow pit, or help scrape the bits of bone and mangled flesh of a while family into baskets at a grade crossing.

You'd vomit as I have done. But you'd think different the next time you got behind the wheel of an automobile.

If some foreign power killed and wounded as many of our citizens as our motorists do each year -- you would be ready to take up arms and fight to stop it.

And yet a great many who are responsible for this terrible loss of life and limb and lifelong suffering are individuals like yourself -- "fast" but "safe" drivers and "important" people in a big hot hurry.

You said the officer who gave you the ticket didn't argue with you but that his manner was insolent.

The trouble with you is that you don't recognize sincerity when you see it. Our men are under orders not to argue, but to be firm, fair and impartial. I doubt that he was insolent -- especially since he didn't argue with you. He was merely concerned -- concerned with your safety and the safety of the hundreds of others on the highway.

You say you were driving safely? That's what the woman thought a few short months ago when she overturned on an icy strip on the highway not more than 500 yards from the point at which you said the patrolman stopped you.

If that patrolman had been there and cautioned that woman before she hit that ice patch at 75 miles per hour, she would still be here; her child would have the affection of their mother and a husband would have been spared unnecessary grief and cost.

Maybe she would have written a letter of complaint, too. But I wouldn't have cared. It's only the dead ones who don't complain.

Mad again? So was the youngster down on highway 30. He had some personal reason for being mad. "I'll show you how mad I can get," he told his companions. His broken body was picked up near the end of a 500-foot skid mark. They found his head on the prairie a hundred feet away.

It's better to be alive and mad, or alive and late than dead and still in a hurry. That was the case when the salesman a few months ago rounded a curve on highway 95. He was on an important call, but he never kept his appointment. We picked his head off the paving and scraped his body together from beneath his automobile. Are sales that important? You'll never collect the commission that way. Neither will your widow.

The trouble with so many drivers is that they have dual personalities. Too often, a highly respected businessman, a geneltman in his profession and a social leader in the community, becomes a dangerous egotist behind the wheel. The respect he normally displays for his fellow citizens becomes submerged in a conviction of superiority arising from his control of two tons of steel and 200 or 300 horsepower. He blows his horn at pedestrians or drivers who threaten to interfere with his lordly progress.

Whatever lane he chooses is his exclusive property, and sometimes he takes part of two lanes. He picks any speed that suits his fancy.

He is too big to be anything but contemptuous of the traffic officer who questions his driving ability. His favorite retort is "I'll have your job for this, copper!"

Maybe you're one of these big shots and that's what's bothering you.

Or maybe you're one of the Milquetoasts -- the meek little guy who spends his life taking orders from the boss but who becomes a tryant when he's driving. All he has to do to get even with the world is step on the gas. He has as much right as anyone else and he will assert it even if it means killing himself or the other fellow.

Do you wonder that I'm mad all the time? So many of the people I do business with are downright stupid for no good reason. Yet, anywhere but behind the wheel of a high-powered machine they're normal, intelligent, thinking, considerate humans.

Then there are kids who shouldn't be allowed the use of the family car until they learn common sense.

I went home the other night saddened. I had listened to a father blubber like a baby. The last time I talked to him before that, he was lecturing me. His son was a good driver, he said. Sure, weaving in and out of traffic, digging out on the green.

Well, we had picked up the boy on two occasions and were ready to ground him for keeps. Then before we could do it, the serious smashup that we had anticipated, happened. The boy's body was being wheeled out of the operating room to the morgue when the father broke down and cried: "I killed my own son trying to prove that I was right. I hate myself."

Let me ask you: Do you believe we should allow some idiot to risk your life and the lives of your family members just because he wants to be there in time for the kickoff? Would we be doing our duty in letting him off with just a few words of warning?

What do you expect a cop to be anyhow? Do you want your state police to be a bunch of weak-kneed, jelly - spined apologists who smile at a speeder knowing that sooner or later he will cause an accident?

Suppose we allowed everybody else to drive the way you were driving when the patrolman stopped you. It wouldn't be too long until you and one of those others met -- met head on. And that would be that.

Look in the truck cab at the roasted body of a driver who overturned while trying to let a hurry-boy pass without crashing into the oncoming automobile. Smell his hair burning, experience that nausea that comes from smelling burned flesh and then tell me to let a reckless driver off easy. You tell the widow of the truck driver that. Go to her house as I have had to do, and tell her that her man has been killed because a lighthearted bunch of fun seekers were in a hurry. Look the truck driver's kids in the eye and try to explain why their dad won't be home.

You tell 'em, Buster, I'm too mad and too busy!

The week prior to Easter Sunday is known to many people as Holy Week. It is a period dedicated to the betterment of mankind. The Missouri Highway Patrol reports that the eight day period from Palm Sunday through Easter Sunday is usually a tragic period on Missouri highways.

In the past five years, a total of 125 people have died in Missouri traffic accidents during the religious week. Patrol records show that during this period last year there were 28 traffic deaths in Missouri. There was not a single day during last year's Holy Week that a traffic fatality was not reported in Missouri. The most tragic day in that week was Easter Sunday when ten people were killed.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said, "The present increase in traffic deaths in Missouri indicates that more than 30 people may be killed this Holy Week. This tragedy on the highways will surely occur if the present irresponsible conduct on the highways is continued.

"Many people will be traveling to visit families and friends during the Easter Sunday week end. This will mean heavy traffic on all Missouri roadways. It is imperative that motorists use caution through this period and accept their moral responsibility.

"The Easter week traffic death toll will be held in check," Colonel Waggoner concluded, "if all motorists obey all traffic laws and use common sense while driving."

MARY MAGDALENE

I PRESS my gift of spice to trembling lips,
For faith is parched without Thee, O my Lord.
I yearn to scatter rose leaves at the tips
Of Thy cool fingers, O Thou deep-adored.
But they have taken Thee away; I know
Not where to find Thee, Christ, divinely fair.
I lay my spices down with head bowed low
And seek my gentle Saviour everywhere.
Then suddenly a voice bespeaks my name
His love restored from sin; and my sad heart
Leaps up, for music evermore the same
That is His voice makes wondering teardrops start.
"Rabboni!" All my soul is in this word,
For Thou hast called me, Lord, and I have heard!

H. L. Hunt Says

PRODUCTION AND SALESMANSHIP

Americans rightfully regard themselves as unsurpassed in the realm of supersalesmanship. We sell more material goods than any other nation in the world. However, when it comes to selling our belief in the capitalistic, personal enterprise system which produces these goods, our sales fall embarrassingly short.

More than a century ago, Karl Marx theorized that the ownership of industry and business should be in the hands of "the people". It is ironic that in the countries where Marx was best received, the people now own essentially nothing, while in the United States under the capitalistic system Marx reviled, the people own virtually all the land, the tools of production, and the profits! Nevertheless, Communism is gaining widespread acceptance.

We enjoy today, in this country, the most successful economic system the world has ever seen. We can produce the necessities to supply millions of people abroad but fail to prove our profit motive system works best. Is our inability to make a convincing sale of the merits of our system due to the fact that we don't believe in it? Or is our trouble simply that we are so accustomed to it that we don't appreciate it? When asked to stand up for the side of economic freedom many Americans intend to respond but appear to be busy to ever get started.

Let's take time now to count the blessings freedom brings. And if we can't tell a neighbor in another country, let's at least tell a neighbor next door. HLH

NEW YORK AP -- Twelve years ago Barbra Streisand was a beatnik kid who made 50 cents an hour as a baby sitter. Today her income is nearer a million dollars a year.

The onetime Flatbush gamin has become a show world empress.

The girl who once looked like a skinny Jewish gnome now has the grace and imperious profile of a Babylonian queen. Instead of a walkup flat she dwells in a Central Park duplex that has nine glittering chandeliers. Once she dressed like a 1925 mannequin in a lower East Side thrift shop. Now few socialites could match her wardrobe.

But as her 23rd birthday nears, Barbra finds herself still basically unchanged where she feels it counts most--inside.

"No one thing has made life very different for me," she said. "In a way I'm disappointed that it hasn't.

"What is suffering to one person is joy to another," she said in her theater dressing room from which hangs a 10th glittering crystal chandelier, the symbol of her stardom.

"I went through a lot of adolescent pangs that were critical to me, but I never had to scrub floors or do anything like that.

"I was so gawky no one would hire me as a model. So I worked as a cashier in a Chinese restaurant for $1 an hour and all the chow mein I could eat. I loved that.

"I also licked envelopes for a printing firm for $45.17 a week -- and saved $15 of it. I always was saving. The main thing I didn't want to be was a typist. I let my fingernails grow long so I couldn't type."

In addition to her stage earnings, royalties from phonograph albums and other sources of income, Barbra has a television contract guaranteeing her $5 million over the next 10 years.

"Any amount of money over 450,000 confuses me. I feel you can live as well on $25,000 a year as on a million. You can ride in only one limousine at a time," she said.

"I allot myself only $25 a week, and I never spend it all. I like to pay in cash. It gives me a great feeling.

"When I pay by check, I feel like I'm getting it for nothing--because it's just paper."

Maturity has somewhat tamed Barbra's prankishness with which she used to call attention to herslef. She remains a loner, given to introspection. Her dark blue eyes smolder with electric intensity.

Here are her likes and dislikes:

"I like Chantilly lace and avocados, scarey movies and Bartok's violin concerto. Gardenias and enameled snuffboxes, gingerbread and lavender roses, Rembrandt paintings and Thomas Mann's novels. Good shoes, the feel of fur blankets, the smell of Italian cooking, studying languages and talking to doctors; steak Diane for breakfast, the color of wine but not the taste of it; Sundays, when nothing is going on and everything has stopped.

"I dislike fake fur, arriving early to an appointment, crowded streets, dirty ashtrays, newspapers lying around, candy with gooey centers, eggs, overcooked food, opportunistic people and ladies who smell like flowers instead of like ladies."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — In the Western World, great curiosity persists regarding Nikita Khrushchev — where he is, what he's doing, whether he is philosophical about his retirement. But in Moscow Mr. K. is regarded about the way Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the United States — as an overage, retired political leader. He does not arouse much interest.

This in itself is something of a triumph for the new Democratic trend in the Soviet, and many Russians will tell you frankly that they are proud of the peaceful non-violent manner in which Khrushchev was retired. They regard it as a trend toward the democratic process.

His retirement, of course, was not democracy as Americans understand it — namely, by popular vote; but rather by committee vote. However, it's significant that, if there had been a popular vote, Khrushchev probably would have been voted out of office.

Most Western observers, and for that matter many Soviet leaders, considered him highly popular with the Russian people. His wisecracks, his Russian proverbs, his fondness for mingling with the people were considered a guarantee of popularity, and immediately after his retirement the new leaders of the Kremlin were a little worried as to how the Russian people would react.

—UN POPULAR

FOREIGN AID—

But they discovered that Khrushchev was not popular at all. In the first place he had been in office too long. Second, he was charged with non-fulfillment of many promises. Third, the Russian people were irked over his foreign aid program, especially the large amount of money siphoned into Egypt for the Aswan Dam.

Khrushchev had made the mistake of talking a great deal about the new farm program and his development of the virgin lands. The Russian people had come to expect a bumper harvest. They didn't give a hang over the fact that Russia suffered a disastrous drought. Like the American people, they are interested in results. And they blamed Khrushchev for lack of results.

Furthermore, most Soviet cities continue to suffer from a housing shortage. Therefore, when Khrushchev made a big show of going to Cairo to dedicate the first phase of the Aswan Dam, it focused attention upon the large amounts of money loaned to Egypt at a time when the Russian people were forced to live with their in-laws because of crowded housing.

What really broke Khrushchev's political back, however, was a $90 million additional credit which he gave to President Nasser while he was in Cairo, on the spot, without consulting the Presidium or the Central Committee.

This was one of the big black marks against him.

—RUSSIAN NEPOTISM—

Another black mark was nepotism, especially involving his son-in-law, the likeable and dynamic Alexei Adzuhbei, then editor of Izvestia. The Russian people did not object to the minor jobs given to Khrushchev's self-effacing daughter or his inconspicuous daughter-in-law nor to the relatively honorary position held by Mrs. Khrushchev. But the top leaders did object to Adzuhbei. So also did the lesser employees at Izvestia.

Adzuhbei was brilliant, cocky, high-handed, and inconsiderate. The staff at Izvestia hated him. When his father-in-law proposed that he be elevated to the Presidium, it caused a furor both in high places and low.

Adzuhbei is now an editor of the Soviet Life Magazine, where he's writing under an assumed name and doing a good job. He has learned his lesson, isn't drinking as much, and probably will stage a comeback a few years hence. He has real ability, even genius.

These things all came to a head in October 1964, at which time some of Khrushchev's old friends in the Presidium argued with him that he was making mistakes. There had been arguments before, but never had they been so vigorous.

Khrushchev's reply was quoted to me as being: "Well, perhaps I'd better resign."

"We think perhaps you should," some of his old friends replied.

So the matter was taken up immediately in the Presidium. Khrushchev presided. The vote went overwhelmingly against him. The Presidium then moved next door to the Central Committee where Khrushchev presided again. This time the vote also went against him, though it was by no means unanimous. He had plenty of supporters on the Central Committee.

—RESTLESS MR. K—

The man who dominated the Russian scene for ten years is not taking his retirement as philosophically as reported in the press. He looks thinner and has aged.

He is living about forty miles from Moscow in a new dacha supplied him by the Soviet government. He has every luxury available — servants, two guards, automobiles. He is able to hunt, which he enjoys, and he is doing a lot of reading. He doesn't fish. He once told me that he was too impatient a man to fish.

Khrushchev comes into town about once a week to see his grandchildren. He has an apartment in Moscow where Mrs. Khrushchev resides more than he does.

The Soviet leaders were anxious to have the world know that he was healthy and living quietly in retirement. This was why they tipped off Western newspapermen prior to his voting in the recent Moscow election. Khrushchev is now 71 and despite reports that he might stage a comeback, this is considered beyond the realm of political possibility.

History will show that Nikita Sergeyevich did a great job for the Soviet people and a constructive job for better world understanding. But even if he wanted to stage a comeback — which he doesn't — the Russian people would not be enthusiastic. It will take some time for history to make them realize what progress they achieved under his regime.

—CHINA SAYS "NO"—

Red China's scornful response to President Johnson's peace overture was coupled with a private message to UN Secretary General Thant, making it clear that the Chinese want no settlement of the Viet Nam conflict short of unconditional American withdrawal.

The word to U Thant came from Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai, who passed it on to Algerian President Ben Bella during their talks last week in Algiers. Ben Bella relayed the message to this UN ambassador, Tewfik Bouattoura, who delivered it to U Thant.

In substance, Chou let the Secretary General know that Red China appreciated his peaceful intent but that the United Nations has no business meddling in the Viet Nam crisis. Thus U Thant was discouraged from pursuing his offer to go to Hanoi and Peking personally to negotiate a truce, an offer that had the unofficial blessings of both the United States and Soviet Union.

American policymakers, trying to understand China's uncompromising attitude, have come up with this explanation:

1. The Chinese are convinced that the United States with all its massive air and naval strength can't win an unorthodox, hide-and-seek war with Communist guerrillas. Apparently, the Chinese aren't troubled over the bombing of North Viet Nam which hasn't hurt the guerrillas and wins no friends for the United States among the Vietnamese people who are being bombed.

2. The air attacks are driving North Viet Nam into the smothering Chinese embrace. Before the bombing, the wily and wispy North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chih Minh, was walking a tightrope between Moscow and Peking. But the Russians, reluctant to get embroiled in the Viet Nam war, have failed to send the heavy arms shipments that Ho expected. Result: The Hanoi line has become increasingly pro - Peking, and Chinese-minded leaders have gained a stronger influence in the North Vietnamese party councils.

3. The Red Chinese are trying to portray Uncle Sam to the world as an international ogre. The spectacle of the world's mightiest power dropping bombs on tiny North Viet Nam is grist for the Chinese propaganda mill. The Communists have been flooding Asia, Africa, and Latin America with pictures of injured women and crying children in the rubble left by the U.S. bombers.

Most policymakers believe that China prefers a shouting to a shooting war. By keeping her own troops out of Viet Nam, the Chinese enhance the propaganda picture of the big power picking on the little country.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Communists are waging not only a propaganda war but a worldwide economic war against the United States. They are trying to stir up the colored people of the world against Americans and to persuade the underdeveloped nations to stop selling their raw materials to the United States.

This is safer warfare than provoking the Americans to bomb the Chinese mainland. But if the rulers in Peking should decide that they must back up their belligerent talk with action, they are known to believe in the inevitability of the Communist triumph.

Jacqueline Elois Sittner Says Wedding Vows With Larry Joe Hornback Friday

At six o'clock in the evening on April ninth at the Fellowship Baptist Church, Miss Jacqueline Elois Sittner, daughter of Mrs. Maxine Sittner, exchanged wedding vows with Larry Joe Hornback, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus S. Hornback.

Rev. James Fitch performed the double ring ceremony before a setting of white gladioli and mums entertwined with greenery. A fifteen branch candelabra and kneeling rail completed the background.

Pam Maloney, organist, provided the pre-nuptial music and played the traditional "Wedding March."

The beautiful bride chose for her wedding a floor - length bridal gown of white milk organza enhanced with appliqued lace motifs down the center front. An overskirt of organza bordered with peau de soie graced the full skirt. The matching jacket was styled with a high round neckline and featured long sleeves that came to a point over the bride's wrists.

A crown of iridescent sequins and pearls held her elbow-length veil of illusion. The former Miss Sittner carried a white orchid tied with white ribbon atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Charlotte Hedge, sister of the bride, attended her as matron of honor. She was attired in a street - length two piece dress of pink orlon with a bell shaped skirt. She complemented her gown with a jacket with matching pink lace motifs. She completed her attire with a pink tulle nose-tip veil and pink gloves and slippers.

Mrs. Hedge carried a colonial bouquet of white cushion mums tied with white ribbon streamers.

Janice Harrison, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book, wearing a yellow dress of whipped cream styled with a full skirt. A corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

Don Hartlein, of Commerce, attended his friend as best man. Serving as usher was Dale Capps, a close friend of the groom. The men in the wedding party wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Sittner chose for her daughter's wedding a navy nylon jersey dress which she accented with navy accessories. Mrs. Hornback wore a two piece beige suit with beige and brown accessories. Both mothers wore corsages fashioned from white carnations.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus S. Hornback. The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth overlaid with white net. A three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom centered the table. Punch, dinner mints and nuts were also served to the guests from the lovely table.

Miss Sharon Hornback, sister of the groom, and Deborah Sue Shaffer, cousin of the groom, served at the reception.

WEDDING TRIP

The newlywed couple left on an undisclosed wedding trip following the reception. For traveling, the new Mrs. Hornback wore a pink and white two piece double knit wool suit complemented with black accessories. She wore an orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet. The young couple will be at home to friends on April 15 at Jon-Don Acres.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't consider me crazy for asking you this but I need help badly and you are my only hope.

My mother is bald. My father has a very heavy head of hair. My older brother is rapidly losing his hair and will soon be bald--like my mother.

I am a circus acrobat. Hanging by my hair is part of my act. My hair seems to be the same heavy type that father has, but at times I become depressed worrying about the possibility that perhaps my hair will fall out like my mother's.

Should I change professions before it is too late? Thank you for your kind consideration. --WORRIED

Dear Worried: Don't be a coward and change professions, even if you should detect signs of baldness. Stick with it. Bill yourself as the world's only balding acrobat who hangs by his hair. And please --don't chicken out and use a net. I'd like to get rid of you characters who write phony letters--and the sooner the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Easter will soon be here and I would like to express my views on something that has been bothering me since last year when I attended an Easter Sunday brunch at the home of friends.

These friends have three children under six years of age. As an Easter gift the parents gave their children some baby chicks dyed shades of pink, blue and green. The children were squeezing, choking and torturing the baby chicks without realizing what they were doing.

The two-year-old threw the little pink chick against the wall as if it were a rubber ball. The mother picked the chick up and said quietly, "You mustn't do that, dear." She gave the chick back to the child who proceeded to choke it. I could not bear to watch any longer so I left.

Please, Ann, say something in your column about giving very young children live pets to play with.--S. O. S.

Dear S. O. S.: Dyeing and selling baby chicks is illegal in some states. (Illinois for one.) The penalty, however, is not stiff enough to deter a pet shop owner who wants to engage in the practice. The law reads: "A fine of not less that $5 and not more than $200, and confiscation of the chicks."

The Anti-Cruelty Society would like to discourage the sale of chicks as toys. Aside from the fact that most youngsters unwittingly abuse them, chicks need warmth (about 90 degree temperature) and most homes are too cold for their survival.

Dear Ann Landers: My uncle was buried last Thursday. When I tell you we have at least 100 relatives in this town I am not exaggerating.

This uncle was a nice person and everyone liked him. His wife is a living, breathing chunk of ice who could hold a convention of all her friends in a telephone booth.

After the funeral my husband and I went to the cemetery and then home. We learned the next day the whole crowd was invited to my aunt's house for dinner. We were the only ones who weren't there. I am very put out. Why would she do this? Even in her grief she managed to insult me. Please comment. --PUT OUT

Dear Out: Relatives and close friends customarily gather at the home of the bereaved after a funeral. It is not a party. Nobody gets invited. They just go.

Relatives, friends and neighbors usually assume the responsibility of bringing, preparing and serving the food. Your letter is a good example of how people sometimes blame others when the fault lies with themselves.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting-- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Fewer Fans Attend Opening Day Baseball Games

Approximately 3,000 fewer persons per game turned out for baseball's opening - day games Monday than did for the first games last year.

A total of 234,109 saw the eight games played. A ninth contest, Cleveland at Los Angeles was rained out. Baltimore and the Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

The average paid attendance for the games was 29,264. An average crowd of 34,344 saw the openers in 1964.

Largest paid crowd of the day -- 43,554 - was at Washington where Boston helped the Senators get the season started. A total attendance of 48,546 was reported at Houston for the first official league game under the Astrodome, but the paid crowd numbered 42,652.

Cards Tie Cubs Flood Has 4 Hits

The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals started the 1965 season Monday in Chicago like they ended 1964 — then things got steadily worse.

The Cardinals slugged 24-game winner Larry Jackson for five runs in the first inning, but that went out the window and the Red Birds had to settle for an 11-inning 10-10 tie in a game halted by darkness.

The contest will be replayed at a later date.

St. Louis managed to hang on to some of its lead until Ernie Banks unloaded a three - run homer with two out in the ninth inning off Barney Schultz to tie the score, 9-9.

The Cardinals had one more chance, scoring on Lou Brock's hit in the 11th, but Schultz again failed in the final half of the inning. The Cardinals needed Bob Purkey to get the final two outs to save a tie after Ron Santo of the Cubs doubled home the tying run.

The teams used 13 pitchers in the game, seven by the cubs.

Bob Gibson failed to last four innings for the Cardinals and Ron Raylor and Schultz were hammered. Only Purkey and Tracy Stallard, who pitched 4 1-3 innings of one-hit ball, held the Cubs in check.

St. Louis was aided by five Chicago errors, which led to four unearned runs, and uncapped a 17-hit attack. Curt Flood had four hits and Brock and Bill White three each. Brock and Flood each drove in two runs.

The Cardinals today will send Curt Simmons (18-9) against Bob Buhl (15-14) of the Cubs.

Koufax Back In Style

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, the mystery man of the Los Angeles Dodgers, expects to take his regular pitching turn Sunday in Philadelphia.

After a three-inning test run at Washington Sunday in which Sandy struck out five batters, there was no recurrence of the swollen elbow that sent him home from spring training.

The troublesome left elbow, which had puffed up to grapefruit size after his last outing in Florida, was packed in ice for 20 minutes after his trial in Washington. Earlier in Los Angeles he had been given a cortisone injection.

"I am going to try a new system," said the personable Dodger left who could be the greatest pitcher in modern-day baseball.

"I am going to leave out throwing between games, once I get back in regular turn. I may have to do a little throwing Friday because it will be so long between starts.

"All I know is that I have traumatic arthritis. I'll have to play it by ear as I go along. The arm felt fine in Florida but the day after I pitched the last time down there I couldn't straighten out my arm. I decided to go home and find out what it was. At least the arthritis is all in one spot and not all through my system.

"The way I felt Sunday I wished that I had tried to pitch sooner."

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers naturally was relieved.

"Sandy will be in there as often as he is ready to pitch," said Alston. "Nobody can tell how often that will be except Sandy. Whether it's once a week or every fourth day we'll be glad to have him."

Koufax, only 29, led the National League with a 1.75 earned run average last season but fell short of a 20-win season with a 19-5 record. The same elbow trouble, not then diagnosed as arthritis, forced him to miss several turns and put him out of action from mid-August on.

In 1963, Sandy was everybody's "pitcher of the year" with a 25-5 record and a strikeout record in the World Series sweep over the New York Yankees.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. AP -- Jack Nicklaus' record - setting victory in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., Sunday sent him zooming to the top of the Professional Golfers' Association money list.

Nicklaus has won $34,400 in official money on PGA sanctioned tournaments and $8,425 in unofficial money for a total $42,825. Only official money counts toward the PGA standings.

Doug Sanders was second with $30,707 in official money, $3,257 in unofficial earnings, for a total of $33,964.

Billy Casper was third with $21,948 and $20,106 for a total of $42,054.

NCAA Imposing Fewer Probations On Colleges

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The NCAA is imposing fewer probation penalties each year for football recruiting violations and to Art Bergstrom, this means the enforcement program he heads is a success.

Coaches in the field tell me the climate is different—much better than it was several years years ago," Bergstrom said. He is an assistant to the NCAA director and also served as secretary to the infactions committee.

The new climate was emphasized Monday when the NCAA Council simply reaffirmed earlier actions by the Southwest Conference. The council placed Southern Methodist, Texas and Arkansas on probation, imposing penalties in football identical to those dealt by the SWC in 1964.

SMU was placed on two-year probation and prohibited from playing in post season bowl games. The penalties against Arkansas and Texas were much less severe — one-year probation with non ban on bowl play.

The Texas and SMY probations date from May 9, 1964, the Arkansas probation from Dec. 12, 1964. These are the dates the SWC took action.

Bergstrom said the committee on infractions commended the SWC for its complete investigation, its action, and for turning over its complete file on all three cases.

The committee didn't have to make its own investigation," Bergstrom said. "This is ideal from the NCAA viewpoint because it backs up the cooperative principle."

The NCAA council completed its three-day meetings by terminating the two-year probation against Hardin - Simmons and lifting one - year probations against Kentucky, Slippery Rock Pa. State and Prairie View A&M of Texas.

The Texas SWC probation can be lifted next month, but the NCAA council couldn't act on it until its next meeting Oct. 25-27 in Denver. The Arkansas probation could be lifted this Dec. 12 by the SWC and the council could act less than a month later at the 1966 NCAA convention in Washington, D.C.

SMU's probation could be lifted May 9, 1966 by the SWC and the council could act on October 1966. The time lag won't work any hardship against any of the three schools.

Mizzou Practices Football

It's a long time between spring football practice and the title race next fall, but a lot more passing and wide-open offense will be seen in the 1965 season — if you can take the coaches seriously.

Kansas, led by conservative Jack Mitchell, is the latest on the list. The Jayhawks opened spring drills Monday with a 113-man squad.

"I think we have better throwing and better receivers this year," Mitchell said "We're going to spread our offense and work real hard on passing."

The new substitution rules, providing for an almost complete return to two-platoon football, will permit more specialization and better offense.

Kansas is the next-to-last team to start spring practice. Iowa State's first drills are set for April 20.

Wet and cool weather has forced postponements of two seeks and more at most Big Eight camps, but K-State gambled with an early start and won. The Wildcats finished practice last Friday. K-State quarterbacks put up 61 passes in the spring game.

OSU and Nebraska plan intra-squad games May 8, Colorado finishes with an alumni game May 8, Oklahoma with an intra-squad game May 1, Missouri with an intra-squad May 14 and Kansas with an intra-squad May 15.

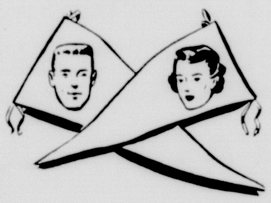
Is Your Child College Material?



That depends. By today's standards, he probably is. By standards ten years from now, perhaps not. How can that be? Is his I.Q. likely to change? No. But conditions are.

Many college classrooms are crowded today. By 1967, applications are expected to double. Low salaries are driving too many qualified teachers into other fields.

By the time your child reaches eighteen, there may not be any room for him in any college.

This is a frightening situation. Now is the time to put a stop to it. Help the college or university of your choice now. The rewards will be greater than you think.

Yanks Picked to Repeat; In National, It's the Reds

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It's the silly time, when people want to know, "Who d'ya pick?"

The question's about as logical as people asking Rocky Marciano, "How d'ya feel?" Or Carroll Baker, "Do you like publicity?"

The Rock used to be in heavy training for a defense of his championship, hard like . . . well, like a Rock. "So how'd they expect me to feel?" Marciano would arch his eyebrows. "Lousy?"

So you expect me to say the Yankees won't win the American League pennant?

With deliberate concentration, between you'n'me and the world, this is how I figure the baseball season:

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
1. New York	1. Cincinnati
2. Baltimore	2. Philadelphia
3. Chicago	3. Los Angeles
4. Los Angeles	4. St. Louis
5. Cleveland	5. San Francisco
6. Minnesota	6. Milwaukee
7. Detroit	7. Pittsburgh
8. Washington	8. Houston
9. Boston	9. Chicago
10. Kansas City	10. New York

I suppose you want some reasoning, too. Did Richard Burton have to explain it, when he took Elizabeth Taylor for his bride?

It's obvious. The Yankees are used to winning 29 AL titles in 44 years since they got the habit in 1921. In the post-World War II era, they stand 15 and 3, including the last five in a row.

The Baltimore Orioles are pushed up a notch to second, mainly on Hank Bauer's optimism and the good health of Boog Powell.

The White Sox have to do it on pitching and manager Al Lopez's juggling.

I can't be as positive about the National League, where pennant-winning teams make a habit of dropping to sixth place. The Pirates did it after '60 and the Dodgers after '63. Cincinnati is the choice mainly because of a pearl dropped by Sandy Koufax one afternoon in Vero Beach. Best balanced team in the league, said Sandy of the Dodgers.

Philadelphia is the team to write about, with such savants as Dick Stuart and Bo Belinsky, but no one can measure the shell shock of last year's collapse, when they led by 6½ with 12 games to play and then lost 10 in a row.

76ers and Celtics Tangle Tonight

The short odds are great, the long odds murderous for Philadelphia and Baltimore in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The 76ers entertain the Boston Celtics and the Bullets host the Los Angeles Lakers tonight in the sixth games of best-of-7 semifinal series. If form holds up, there will be a seventh game in each set — and the 76ers and Bullets will be in big trouble.

The Celtics, bidding for a ninth consecutive Eastern Division playoff title, hold a 3-2 edge over the 76ers. The Lakers have the same margin over the Bullets in the Western Division finals.

While precedent is with Philadelphia and Baltimore tonight — nobody has been able to win on the road in either series — it is even more squarely against them in the long run. Only twice has a team been down 2-3 and come back to capture a semifinal set. The St. Louis Hawks did it in 1960 and again in 1961.

PATROL OPTIMISTIC OVER SEVERAL BILLS

With the baseball season now upon us, fans will be anticipating a variety of broken records during the long, hot season. And, so too, is the Highway Patrol, but its anticipation is something less that optimistic.

Col. Hugh Waggoner recently reported that final statistics for highway accidents in Missouri for last year have been tabulated and the "record" set during that 12-month period is causing considerable alarm.

For instance, during the 1964 traffic season, the Patrol worked an estimated 25,000 accidents in rural Missouri. The number of persons killed in these accidents and those in metropolitan areas reached the 1,291 mark with the property damage running well into the millions.

And, so far this year, the picture is continuing the dark, upward trend with accidents through April 6 killing 321 persons on Missouri roadways compared to 290 for the comparable period a year ago.

What's to be done is a proposition the Patrol, in general, and Waggoner, in particular, must face.

Under Waggoner, the Patrol once again is sponsoring a variety of legislation aimed at bringing safer conditions to Missouri trafficways through reducing the staggering number of accidents that occur.

The approach to solving the problem --and Waggoner notes that it's not a Missouri phenomenon but a national disgrace --is through a variety of bills, many of which Waggoner now feels stand a good chance of passage during this legislative session.

Briefly, here is a review of some of the most important measures in this area:

CHEMICAL TEST

The chemical test bill for drunken drivers, Waggoner indicated, is progressing well and appears headed toward passage. Under its provisions, persons applying for license to drive give their implied consent to the test.

INCREASED MANPOWER

A bill to increase the size of the Patrol by 145 additional troopers is now up for final passage in the Senate. The original bill would have increased the number from the present force of 505 to 750 but was cut by committee. A similar bill failed in 1963. If the bill is finalized, Waggoner said, the Patrol's strength would be increased by 75 new men over the next two years.

MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION

The superintendent noted that findings show some six per cent of all traffic accidents are caused by defective equipment. "Definitely, it has been proven that vehicles in poor operating condition are causing many accidents," Waggoner said. These defects include faulty brakes, lights, tires, etc.

Under the motor vehicle inspection bill, all cars would have to be inspected annually, within 30 days before a license could be renewed. Passage of the bill would require an additional 35 men to staff inspection stations.

MINIMUM SPEED BILL

A bill to place a minimum speed of 40 miles an hour on federal highways in Missouri has been rejected in the House and the Patrol is not too optimistic over a similar bill pending in the Senate. This has been called the slow poke driv-bill and is sought by the Patrol because of the number of accidents caused by slow driving.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK SET FOR APRIL 25-MAY 1

National Library Week will be celebrated throughout the country, including Missouri, this year the week of April 25 through May 1 and library officials appear hopeful that interested citizens will take a look at what's missing in the state's libraries.

For instance, a fact sheet prepared on Missouri's present library situation, reveals some startling statistics:

While there are 225 public school libraries in existence, another 395 public schools are without such facilities.

Of the 114 counties in this state, 97 have some form of tax supported library while the remaining 17 counties are without this service. This means that over half a million Missourians have no access to library facilities.

And, Missouri public libraries apparently fail some three million volumes short of being able to meet population demands.

This is indicated by the fact that the total number of books in Missouri's public libraries today totals 6,500,000. It should be closer to 9,500,000 to meet demands.

PATTERSON SUCCESSION

It appears likely that Mrs. Margot Patterson, young widow of Missouri's late Majority Floor Leader in the House of Representatives, will be a candidate to succeed her husband. Mrs. Patterson has told Boone County Democratic Party officials that she would be happy to run in a special election to be set by Governor Hearnes. Her election would be almost assured because of her husband's popularity and the circumstances of his death.

Weighed in the Balance?

Dr. Kershner

WITHIN the last few years we have witnessed the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and the successful operation of a very aggressive Communist country just off our southern shores, the hauling down of the American flag in Panama and the proposal to give up territory we owned there while many thousands of Cuban-trained Communist subversives are fanning out throughout Latin America and elsewhere for the sworn purpose of putting an end to our type of civilization. Tragedy stalks the Congo and hovers over Malaysia and all of Southeastern Asia. We need all our resources of money and brainpower to contend with these difficulties, The decay of our own courage and self-reliance is one of our biggest challenges. We do not seem to realize that we are living in a false prosperity induced by a continual expansion of the quantity of money and credit. The little known term "trillion" must be used to describe our public and private indebtedness. No one can comprehend a billion, but it takes a thousand billions to make a trillion. Our mounting indebtedness has reached out into space farther than our rockets.

Faced with these foreign and domestic tragedies as we are, the careless revelries in Washington seem to us comparable with Nero's fiddling while Rome burned. Yes, we are even reminded of the time a similar feast was taking place in ancient Babylon when Belshazzar and a thousand of his lords were drinking from golden vessels when the hand of God wrote, "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin" upon the wall, meaning "Thou art weighed in the balance, and found wanting."

We pray that God may stay his judgment upon our country and give us yet some years to return to our senses and recover our integrity. Like Belshazzar and Nebuchadnezzar before him we have forgotten God, exalted the state in His place, prayed to it instead of to God; forgotten the Ten Commandments and indulged in deception, coveting and stealing from one another; forgotten to keep the Sabbath Day holy, to honor our parents and to abide by our marital vows. We have forgotten that God is justice as well as love and we have forsaken principle and righteousness in our international relations.

Jewell Thief Hits $20,000 Jackpot

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jewelry valued at $20,000, including a $10,000 ring, was stolen early Sunday from the home of Marvin Greenbaum in suburban Mission Hills, Kan.

Police believed the burglar had hidden in the home until the couple went to sleep before taking the jewelry from a drawer.

The regulated administration of lime juice in the British navy, begun in 1795, had the effect of virtually extinguishing scurvy, a common fatal disease caused by a deficiency of vitamin C in the food. Scurvy occurs most often when fresh vegetables or fruit are unobtainable.

To The Editor:

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH IS BEING DIVIDED IN OUR COUNTRY.

Within the church we face a serious separation between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. Recent Alabama demonstrations have greatly enlarged the cleavage between clergymen, North and South. Southern ministers have disapproved of the visits of non-Southern clergymen in the Negroes' massive demonstrations against law and order in Selma and elsewhere in the South.

Methodist Ministers and others in the South resent visiting clergymen who blindly follow Negro leadership instead of first conferring with white ministers, local and state officials.

The people of the South realize that Negro demonstrations will bring about a more militant leadership among the fanatical fringe groups, resulting in their adoption of less non-violent methods than are used at present. Law, order, and justice in the South are in jeopardy due to the intrusion and influence of outside interests which would destroy the right of enforcement.

Visiting clergymen supporting Negro demonstrations are creating a serious and total breakdown in inter-church communications between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. As an example, the dynamics of the Alabama demonstrations point to a split in this direction.

The choice is not really that of any group, but rather, the strategy of political pressure on the political structures from the militant leaders who have lost all respect for our existing structures. These visiting clergymen who have aligned themselves with Negro demonstrations have been duped, but their influence will help to continue the present chaos.

You cannot legislate love — it must be earned. Respect for law and order will solve the problems; the solution does not lie in a rebellion against the principles of our Federal and State laws.

Methodist Minister

Long Speaks Out Against War And Aggression

Senator Edward V. Long (D.-Mo.) today said "The crisis in Southeast Asia means we must intensify our efforts to build a world where aggression and war are eliminated."

Speaking in Columbia before the Bishop's Assembly on Peace and World Order, the Senator told the Missouri Methodists "Our goal is to mobilize the world behind a plan that will eliminate the threat of war and aggression."

"If we do not," Senator Long continued, "the communist countries will try to lead us to a world without freedom."

The Senator announced he is a co-sponsor of legislation to create a plan that would look toward "solving international disputes peacefully and without military threat."

"I believe we have more need to accomplish peace than any generation before us. The threat of nuclear war is too much a part of our daily life," he added.

Already, "there are twenty countries which have the capability of making nuclear devices before 1970."

"The only thing holding them back is the fact that United States military forces are providing adequate protection," Senate Long said.

The Senator praised the Methodists for supporting the "Planning for Peace Resolution" which he is co-sponsoring in the Senate. He said passage of the Resolution would result in "the most forward - looking, progressive mission of peace ever undertaken by any nation."

Senator Long said, "As leaders of the free world, it is our solemn task to take the initiative. We must lead the world peace movement."

Many Faces Of Hard Water, All Bad

Hard water means different things in different parts of the house, says the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

In the bathroom, it's the ring on the bathtub, difficult to remove short of vigorous scouring with a heavy-duty cleanser (a practice that is harmful to fixtures). At the lavatory, it's the film of discoloration that remains when the water is drained. Here again, the dirt resists all but the most vigorous removal techniques.

In the kitchen, hard water in the saucepan is responsible for the wrinkled look and tough texture of cooked peas and beans -- and for the dingy film that remains on glassware and silverware. Housewives are particularly aware of this latter problem when they are forced to hand-towel articles before placing them on the table.

Hard water salts deposit in the form of scale on the moving parts of washing machines and dishwashers. If the layer is allowed to build, it can cause a breakdown in the equipment and necessitate a repair job -- to say nothing of the inconvenience of not having the use of the equipment for a while.

And hard water is costly in terms of wasted soap.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
April 13, 1915

The only county officer to be elected Tuesday was county superintendent of schools. Elmer Montgomery won a very decisive victory over Chas. D. Harris, the present incumbent. In the city election alderman elected were: C. S. Tanner, Ward 1; J. E. Smith, sr., ward 2; L. D. Randol, ward 3; and C. B. Johnson, ward 4.

G. W. Stumpp is back at the old stand with John A. Andres. He is one of the best butchers to be found anywhere.

We nominate Cousin Ed Hollingsworth and Harry Dudley to the hall of martyrdom for services rendered in boiling, dyeing and sacking 2,000 Easter eggs. After working earnestly two days last week for the kids of Sikeston they were probably just as earnestly cussed out by parents of said kids Sunday night. The "tumult and the shouting" and indigestion and colic caused by the consumption of 2,000 hard boiled eggs set in. Thus are the faithful rewarded.

Sikeston voted itself into the third - class city stage last Tuesday and can no longer be termed a village. In most respects it has long been ultra - urban in its ways. On Saturday it is really and truly a "busy mart." It has boulevard stops, a Mormon or two and at least 15 gasoline stands. In short the straws behind its ears have vanished and it bids fair to be a metropolis. Only one thing indicates otherwise and that is the habit of many of their fair sex appearing on the streets in boudoir, night and dust caps which are probably used to hide the kid curlers. We think this sign of backward villagedom should be handled by the boosters who want to see Sikeston become a Big Town and therefore refer it to the next session of the Chamber of Commerce on Monday night.

Louis C. Erdman has sold his home in Park Place and will move to St. Louis soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heely of Sikeston have moved to their new home near Diehlstadt.

Nine Sikeston High School girls will go to Cape Girardeau Saturday to participate in a play day sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association of the Teachers' College. Eight of them, Maxine Sellards, Lillian Rita Derris, Betty Belle Donnell, Lucille Hahs, Lois Hahs, Mary Ellen Johnson, Peggy Donnell and Willie Sue Alliston have already been selected. A ninth will be chosen late this week.

The Dempster Furniture and Undertaking Co., is pleased to announce that R. E. Patterson, formerly of Peetz Bros. Funeral in St. Louis is now associated with them.

Miss Ruth Inez Felker, who will be married to Garwood Sharp on Easter Sunday afternoon, has been honoree at several lovely affairs the past week. The Misses Virginia Mount and Ann Beck and Mrs. Dellar Mott entertained last Saturday evening with a surprise shower at the home of Miss Mount. On Friday Mrs. Lacy Allard and Miss Florence Baker entertained with a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at the Allard home, and on Sunday evening at the home of Miss Jane Mitchell, Miss Mitchell and Miss Emily Blanton will entertain with a dinner for Miss Felker and Mr. Sharp.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 42
Lesson No. 42
Reading time 5 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Here is another "key" to Spanish words — If the word ends in 'CE', drop the 'E' and add 'IA' to form a Spanish word:

A) decence B) decencia C) day-SEN-see-ah

A) grace B) gracia C) GRAH-see-ah

A) justice B) justicia C) who-STEE-see-ah

A) importance B) importancia C) eem-pore-TAHN-see-ah

A) reverence B) reverencia C) ray-vair-EN-see-ah

A) distance B) distancia C) de-STAHN-see-ah

Thus, such words as, 'indolence', 'indifference', 'independence', 'importance', 'impatience', etc. all convert to Spanish by employing the above rule.

Now we will give you examples of some of the many words that do not convert. They are similar — only the vowel sounds and accents change. We must begin to 'manufacture' words and, since most words are members of families, it is easy if you think of them as such. 'Look - alike words', 'mean - alike words', 'family-stem words' or prefix and suffix words are what we are referring to. The following are examples of our 'vent family':

A) invent B) inventar C) een-vent-TAR

A) inventive B) inventivo C) een-vent-TEA-o

A) invention B) invencion C) een-ven-see-OWN

A) inventor B) inventor C) een-vent-TORE

A) inventory B) inventario C) een-vent-TAR-e-o

A) convent B) convento C) cone-VENT-toe

A) convention B) convencion C) cone-ven-see-OWN

A) preventive B) preventivo C) pray-vent-TEA-vo

A) prevention B) prevencion C) pray-ven-see-OWN

Isn't this an interesting family of words? Notice how they are related in the two languages. It might interest you to know that they are related in most languages, as are so many, many words.

Still another family of words is the 'trans (prefix) family'. For example:

A) transaction B) transaccion C) trahn-sahk-seek-OWN

A) transcribe B) transcribir C) trahn-scree-BEER

A) transcription B) transcripcion C) trahn-scree-see-OWN

There are many, many more. You can readily see that, if you know your verbs, you can add many more words to this 'family'. In SPEED SPEECH, this is known as the "family word key". You know the family in English — all you have to know is that the same 'family' exists in Spanish, and make the simple changes to produce the Spanish words. Know your verbs, for verbs are the "keys" to languages.

Spanish Speed Speech appears in The Daily Standard as a public service. The Speed Speech course consists of a textbook, a set of two 45 rpm. records and a dictionary of working words. You may purchase any one or all three items by sending check or money order for $3.04 per each in care "SPANISH" this newspaper. We are so sure that you will be pleased, that we offer a money-back guarantee.

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. (John 14:27)

PRAYER: O Lord, quicken in us the spirit of courage. Strengthen us to go forth with hopeful minds to the duties and conditions of this day. Confident of Thy help, may we fashion something good out of whatever material the day will provide. For our Savior's sake. Amen.

Hewitt Burned To Death in Blaze

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The body of J.K. Hewitt, 52, was found Sunday a few feet away from a burned bed in the apartment he had rented two days before.

Police said the fire had not touched the body although the man apparently was injured by the heat of the blaze. Cause of the fire was not known.

Brandt To Talk With Johnson

BERLIN AP -- West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt left today for the United States and talks with President Johnson and other top officials.

Brandt, head of West Germany's opposition Socialist party, will remain in the United States 10 days. He will also meet with labor leaders Walter Reuther and George Meany.

Profound sincerity is the only basis of talent as of character.

Women and birds are able to see without turning their heads, and that is indeed a necessary provision, for they are both surrounded by enemies.

Railroad Union To Present Case

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The locomotive firemen's union which struck and shut down the Kansas City Southern Railway for more than 12 hours last week, will present its case in Court Thursday.

The union — the Brotherhood of Local Firemen and Enginemen — called off the strike Saturday after a temporary restraining order was issued by Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr., in Shreveport, La. The Kansas City Southern operates an 1,800 mile line from Kansas City to the Gulf.

The railroad's petition in federal court called the strike illegal and alleged the union had failed to submit grievances through machinery established by Congress.

H. G. Kenyon, vice president of the union, said the chief complaint is over suitable lodging arrangements at away - from-home terminals.

She has a rare gift...

It's courage.

Janice's legs are crippled. But there's nothing wrong with the rest of her. She laughs easily. Loves kid games. And she's determined to run, jump rope, dance and play like any other girl her age.

But right now, learning to walk is no picnic. Each step comes hard. Thanks to you, she'll beat her problem.

Your Easter Seal contribution last year helped buy expensive equipment to guide Janice's steps, strengthen her legs, and ease her pain. Your contribution helped the therapist and other skilled personnel at your local Easter Seal chapter.

That's why your Easter Seal contribution is so much appreciated. It gives hope and help—instead of pity. All the pity in the world won't do as much good as a single contribution. Your contribution. When your Easter Seals arrive, take the first step for a crippled child. Give to Easter Seals. As you did last year.

The first step is yours— your gift to Easter Seals

All Eyes on Legs for Spring

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Ready or not, skirts are on the rise again. This must be discouraging news to young women who realize their legs are as off beat as a Bob Dylan record.

Facing the facts of fashion and physique, the only solution is to make the most of a situation. Or better yet, correct or disguise knobby knees, bowlegs, thin or thick ankles.

Good grooming is the first step in covering up imperfect legs. Many neglect their legs and feet and the result often is flaky, scaly skin. Keep legs free from hair and smooth on a softening lotion after bathing. Apply this with a massaging motion from toes up to both hands. You will find this soothes aching muscles and also stimulates circulation.

Shorter skirts and the approach of summer call for special knee care. Rough, discolored knees look awkward. If necessary, use a pumice until the skin is soft and smooth.

Apply a coating of baby cream or moisturizing lotion by walking up and down stairs or doing deep knee bends. You will find this aids the over-all appearance of your legs as well as your knees.

Here are some tricks you can do with stockings to camouflage less than perfect legs and ankles:

• To make large ankles look smaller — wear dull-finish seamed stockings and keep the seams straight. Wear dark shades and also avoid bright or light-colored shoes and especially those with ankle straps. These always call attention to your feet and legs as do jeweled or intricately designed shoes. Put the bright touches at the top of your costume.

• To make plump legs appear thinner — wear longer skirts, even to the middle or at least slightly above the top of the calf. Follow suggestions for large ankles.

• To make thin legs look plumper—select light shades for stockings and skirts that are moderate in width at the hemline. An extremely full or boufant skirt may make your legs look like the proverbial pipe cleaners. Extremely narrow skirts also accentuate thin legs.

Eyewitness To Tornado In Coldwater, Michigan

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP) — The tragedy which struck a 10-mile-long corridor south of here was almost beyond human endurance. Not one — but two — tornadoes raked the area within 30 minutes.

"The first had us reeling," said Branch County Sheriff Keith Wilhelm. "The second knocked us out."

The deadly game of follow-the-leader was played by the twisters down a two-mile-wide corridor on Palm Sunday.

Two Coldwater Lake resorts were wrecked, cars were tossed from a highway as far as 200 feet and a house trailer wound up 50 feet out in the lake.

When it was all over, the county had 20 dead, and at least 200 injured.

Even amid the death and destruction there was something to be thankful for.

The toll of dead and injured at the resorts — Pearl Beach and Crystal Beach — "probably would have been terrible two months from now," said Sheriff Wilhelm. "At this time of year most of the cottages are vacant."

Erwin Feller, a member of the Michigan State Fair Board, and his wife were in their home at Pearl Beach when the first tornado demolished their guest house.

The couple ran out to survey the damage and spotted an injured woman lying on the beach, bleeding badly. They did what they could to help.

"Then the second one came along," Feller said, "and smashed our own house."

Juel Weigh, a Branch County sheriff's deputy, was en route to check on the situation after the first twister hit. As he neared the lake, his car was snatched up by the second and demolished.

Weigh was sucked out by the wind and rolled 75 feet, suffering minor injuries.

Dazed and bewildered survivors told similar stories in other storm-ravaged sections of Michigan.

North of Grand Rapids, a raging twister plowed its way across rich fruit lands. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingersoll were in the barn doing chores when they heard "an awful roar" and the rattle of hail. They ran to a basement corner just as a small mountain of hay came tumbling down and the roof fell in.

Their home — where they had lived 26 years — was pounded into a pile of splinters.

"Our whole life's work is gone," said Mrs. Ingersoll tearfully.

On the other side of the state, at Manitou Beach, another tornado swooped down on the Lyle Ferguson farm where Ferguson, 47; his wife, Irene, 46; their daughter, Carol Martin; her husband, Larry, and their two children were spending a quiet night.

In an instant, the one-story frame house was scattered over a quarter of a mile — and all six were dead.

Communist Guerrilla Activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high Johnson administration official said today an upturn in Communist guerrilla activity in Viet Nam is expected in the weeks ahead and the United States is concerned at what he termed a very dangerous situation.

The official, who could not be identified by name, gave the report at the opening session of a two-day foreign policy conference of U.S. editors and broadcasters.

He emphasized that there have been no indications, private or public, from Communist North Vietnamese, Chinese Communists or the Soviet Union that the Communists are ready to restrain their attacks and reach a settlement of the Viet Nam conflict.

Rejection by Peking and Hanoi of the proposed visit by Patrick Gordon Walker, special emmissary of Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson, contributed to the impression here that the Communists are following a hard line.

It was pointed out that Gordon Walker was representing Britain, which was cochairman with the Soviet Union of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conferences.

Another adverse factor was Peking's rejection of the idea that the United Nations could play any part in a Viet Nam settlement or that Secretary-General U Thant could visit the Chinese and North Vietnamese.

Top U.S. policy makers decided that while the Communist side does not want a war over Southeast Asia, they very obviously want to win Southeast Asia without a war.

President Johnson has made it clear the United States will meet its commitments and will not be driven out of Southeast Asia by military actions from North Viet Nam or Communist China, the officials point out.

A high U.S. authority said this country knows beyond doubt that North Viet Nam is exercising strategic and tactical direction of the Viet Cong guerrillas. Therefore, this source said the United States will not negotiate with the Viet Cong or with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Communists.

The list of top officials scheduled to brief the conference group included Secretary of State Dean Rusk; Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara; other Cabinet officers; AID Administrator David Bell; Undersecretary of State George W. Ball; the assistant secretary of state for U.N. affairs, Harlan Cleveland, and the assistant secretary for Far Eastern affairs, William P. Bundy.

Judge Marshall Craig Speaks To Rotary Club

The Sikeston Rotary Club had their second meeting of their seventeenth year last night at the Rustic Rock, with guest speaker, Judge Marshall Craig. His talk, among other things, concerned criminal law.

He explained how arrests can be made and the hazards to be watched for in making arrests. "In order for an arrest to be made, the violation must violate a stature. From there a complaint must be signed and a person should talk with the Prosecuting Attorney to insure that an arrest can be made."

He then went on to explain the means used in bringing a felony into court. "A preliminary hearing is held in Magistrate Court, and if found guilty the Prosecuting Attorney then files a complaint. Another means is by use of the Grand Jury, although they are not used widely. If they think that the felony should be brought into court, they serve an indictment. The Grand Jury takes the place of the Magistrate Court. On this Jury it does not take all 12 members to indict a person, it can be done with nine, ten or 11 persons."

He explained that all violaters can make use of bail, that is, unless the charge is punishable by death. However, there are cases that are punishable by death, that bail is made.

He pointed out that there is a practical proposition in parole and probation. "All persons that commit criminal acts are not hardened criminals. But if they are sent to prison, although not always, they come back feeling harder, than they would feel if they were put on probation. This thing of probation and parole is a community interest."

Judge Craig then went on to explain about making a citizens arrest. "In order for a person to make a citizens arrest for a felony committed, he must see the violation or have strong reason to believe that a violation has been committed. For a misdemeanor, the violation must be seen while in the act."

The Rotary Club had five guests at the meeting including Judge Craig. Allen Blanton, of the Sikeston Standard, Bill Jordan, Rotarian from Cape Girardeau, Bob Gehlert of St. Louis, and Jack Mahner of Modern Office Supply.

Next week they will hold their meeting at the Holiday Inn, which begins at 6:00 p.m.

Elected Chairman Of Redistricting

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Edward J. Roche, a Democratic committeeman from St. Louis, was elected chairman of the new senatorial redistricting commission Monday.

H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff, former Republican state chairman, was chosen vice chairman. Bill Esely, Bethany Republican, will serve as secretary.

The commission met first with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who urged it to complete its work in less than the six months allowed by the constitution. He told the members they would be on their own in the job of realigning the 34 senatorial districts.

The commissioners decided to go home and study the districts in their local areas as a first step. They will meet again at the call of the chairman.

The federal courts have decreed that Missouri's House, Senate and Congressional districts must be reapportioned to conform with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man — one vote rulings.

Business Is Picking Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Bad weather has put a crimp in Easter buying in many areas but merchants generally are optimistic that their cash registers will ring up record sales.

The late Easter — it comes three weeks later than in 1964 — was a favorable factor.

"It's always better for business when Easter is late," said a Denver merchant. "A woman is less apt to be in the mood to buy a flowery spring hat when it's snowing."

"We would have fallen on our faces if Easter had been early this year," said an executive of Filene's, which has 10 department stores in the Boston area. "People are like crocuses. They don't come out until the sun gets warmer."

Only a few retailers contacted in a nationwide Associated Press survey said that the heavier income tax payments which many people faced due to underwithholding had affected sales.

"Business has been — in one word — lousy," said an executive of a big Philadelphia store. "Unfavorable weather. The late Easter. Then there is this IRS (tax) thing, which must be fouling up the affairs of millions of people, and certainly not helping the economy."

In New York, David Yunich, president of Macy's, big department store chain, said, "We have noted an upsurge that indicates a big pickup this month and I expect Macy's New York to turn in about a 3 to 4 per cent increase for March and April" over the like period of 1964.

Bernard Zients, executive head of Gimbel's, another major New York department store chain, said he expects a "wonderful" Easter business and indicated the present trend shows "all the earmarks" of a gain over last year.

Rich's, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., department store, expects a 6 per cent gain over last year, according to its president, Harold Brockey.

"What Easter buying?" remarked a Minneapolis merchant when asked if much finery was moving. "Weather the last two months has killed everything but miserable weather during February and March."

Edward Marcus, vice president of Nieman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex. said:

"We haven't seen that the income tax underwithholding has made any difference yet, but it might as the days get close to Easter. Styles and colors are about the same with the exception that they're a bit younger this year."

An executive of a leading Seattle, Wash., department store reported sales running between 10 and 15 per cent ahead of last year.

Sales in Los Angeles stores appeared to be better than last year for the most part.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported sales for its entire system in March were up 8.8 per cent over a year earlier despite the later Easter.

Asked on April 6 about Easter sales, a spokesman for Goldblatt Brothers department stores in Chicago, said, "They just let the Easter bunny out of its cage today." He was referring to the first warm, sunny weather of the year.

Dear Mrs. Cleek:

Just look what your letter and petition did. The Council is at least off the ground. I am, like you, hoping that we may secure good legislation in the field of Arts. Refuse To Stay Executions

TOPEKA (AP) — Both Gov. William H. Avery and U.S. District Judge George Templar refused to stop the scheduled executions of two convicted slayers of a Kansas farm family in 1959.

The last-minute appeals were by attorneys for Richard Eugene Hickock and Perry Edward Smith.

Smith and Hickock were convicted of killing four members of the Herbert Clutter family in Finney County in November, 1959.

The two are scheduled to be hanged tonight at the Kansas State penitentiary at Lansing.

Can't Give Son Liquor Department

KANSAS CITY A! -- State Sen. Jasper Brancato can't give his daughter and future son-in-law a liquor department as a wedding present. The school board won't allow it.

Joseph Conova, the bridegrooms, owns a food store. Brancato wants to put a liquor section in it but needed board of education permission because the store is within 300 feet of the Greenwood elementary school.

The Greenwood Parent-Teacher Association objected and so did 91 parents who signed a petition.

The board decided not to waive the requirement even for such sentimental reasons as a wedding present.

New Chief Justice

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Judge Clem Storckman is the new chief justice of the Missouri Supreme Court.

He was elected Monday by the other members of the court after Judge Henry I. Eager resigned as chief justice.

On Missouri's court, chief justices are rotated, with each one serving about 17 months, then resigning to let another judge take over the extra duties.

Two Sikeston Men Identify Fugitive

Fugitive Leslie Douglas Ashley, an escapee from a Texas mental hospital, charged with murder for which he was given the death penalty, but placed in the institution for observation, was definitely identified by two service station attendants in Sikeston early Monday morning.

Charles O'Dell, 27, attendant at the Phillips 66 station near the Holiday Inn, told the following story:

"It was between 6:45 and 7 a.m. when a 'woman' drove into the station to have the car serviced. The party was at the station for five to ten minutes, but said very little during the time. I had a copy of the Daily Standard in the station of April 8, and at the time was looking at the classified section, and also noticed the wanted fugitive article.

"I did notice 'her' large hands, and the face features from the eyes down, and it made me wonder. The person did not come into the station, but walked to both sides of the station and back to the car, but did not go to the rest room."

She did ask a second attendant, James Mollineaux, if he had a missing wrist watch reported to him, as 'she' missed one when she drove into this station a week ago, after going to the rest room.

O'Dell added, "I could tell by her large hands there was something unusual about her, and the way she walked. She was dressed in a light tan blouse and blue shirt, and drove into the station in a 1963 two-door Dodge. As he drove out of the station and headed south, the driver kept looking back until he passed the Holiday Inn entrance. I also noticed there was a Memphis city sticker on the left side of the rear bumper, with a Tennessee license.

After the car left both attendants went back to the station and looked at the Daily Standard article and could see more features that they believed the person to be the wanted fugutive.

O'Dell called Sgt. Gene Harris almost an hour later, to relate the incident.

"We both became suspicious," said O'Dell, "and my mind seemed to freeze on this person, because he seemed such a distant type person. The more we saw the picture the more we became convinced and called the state partolman." Both men agreed that if they saw the 'man' or the car they could identify him without difficulty. "You just don't see such strange actions from a 'female', especially at a service station."

No further word has been heard about the stranger, either from the Troop E patrol, or the Arkansas patrol.

Poison Removed From Near New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Six tons of calcium arsenate, or a similar poisonous compound have been removed today from a dump, six miles northeast of New Madrid, according to the engineer of the state health division, Poplar Bluff, and Paul Sherrod, county administrator, New Madrid county health center.

The poisonous material has been stored temporarily in the old vacant Kroger building on Main street, where it will remain for a few weeks until Bill Sankpill, a member of the water pollution board, Jefferson City, can determine what should be done with it.

Others who helped clear the material away were, Bob Hendrickson, conservation agent, and Earl Washburn, of the county highway department.

A second quantity has been found, 15 miles southwest of New Madrid, near Tallapoosa. The arsenic poisoning, according to the officials, is believed to have been used for the spraying of cotton, and they believe that an outfit in this area went out of business, and had the materials on hand.

The poison, which was stored in large tin cans, as well as pasteboard boxes, has spilled open, and would have killed any livestock or wildlife that may come in contact with it.

It was learned that the arensic was dumped there two weeks ago, but the person was seen but not known. It was discovered Sunday, and an investigation begin immediately.

The location of the material was just across a levee near a large washout used for dumping trash, but a short distance from the Mississippi River overflow, which is now near the washout section, due to the highwater stage at present.

If the river had backed up to this area it would have spread poison over a wide area, and caused a heavy fish destruction once it went into the stream.

The water pollution board will determine what to do with the large amount of arsenic, and will have to be buried. Officials, however, stated it would not be buried in this locality.

In the interview with state and district officials, they asked that anyone finding such material at any time, to advise the sheriff's office or the health centers in the various counties.

The Poison stored in a warehouse in New Madrid awaiting disposal.

Educational Foundation Meets

The Sikeston Education Foundation will hold it's annual breakfast meeting this Saturday to elect directors and officers it was announced by President David E. Blanton.

In it's sixth year the Foundation has made over 90 loans to young people seeking college educations, Mr. Blanton reported, and repayments are being made on most of them.

Selection of young people to receive loans from the Foundation are made in consideration of three factors:

The Foundation was established through contributions of people interested in promoting better education for capable young people who were unable to go to college because of lack of money.

The Foundations needs more capital, says Mr. Blanton, and contributions will be gratefully accepted.

Two Sikeston Men Identify Fugitive

Fugitive Leslie Douglas Ashley, an escapee from a Texas mental hospital, charged with murder for which he was given the death penalty, but placed in the institution for observation, was definitely identified by two service station attendants in Sikeston early Monday morning.

Charles O'Dell, 27, attendant at the Phillips 66 station near the Holiday Inn, told the following story:

"It was between 6:45 and 7 a.m. when a 'woman' drove into the station to have the car serviced. The party was at the station for five to ten minutes, but said very little during the time. I had a copy of the Daily Standard in the station of April 8, and at the time was looking at the classified section, and also noticed the wanted fugitive article.

"I did notice 'her' large hands, and the face features from the eyes down, and it made me wonder. The person did not come into the station, but walked to both sides of the station and back to the car, but did not go to the rest room."

She did ask a second attendant, James Mollineaux, if he had a missing wrist watch reported to him, as 'she' missed one when she drove into this station a week ago, after going to the rest room.

O'Dell added, "I could tell by her large hands there was something unusual about her, and the way she walked. She was dressed in a light tan blouse and blue shirt, and drove into the station in a 1963 two-door Dodge. As he drove out of the station and headed south, the driver kept looking back until he passed the Holiday Inn entrance. I also noticed there was a Memphis city sticker on the left side of the rear bumper, with a Tennessee license.

After the car left both attendants went back to the station and looked at the Daily Standard article and could see more features that they believed the person to be the wanted fugutive.

O'Dell called Sgt. Gene Harris almost an hour later, to relate the incident.

"We both became suspicious," said O'Dell, "and my mind seemed to freeze on this person, because he seemed such a distant type person. The more we saw the picture the more we became convinced and called the state partolman." Both men agreed that if they saw the 'man' or the car they could identify him without difficulty. "You just don't see such strange actions from a 'female', especially at a service station."

No further word has been heard about the stranger, either from the Troop E patrol, or the Arkansas patrol.

We have no objection to the passage of this bill, provided they remove from the rolls all of the illegitimates in each family or case beyond the first illegitimate child. If this bill does not do this, then we are not in favor of same, for at the present time, it is just pretty nigh impossible to secure anyone for common labor with all of the government handouts.

I'M MAD, TOO

"I'm mad, too," states A. E. Perkins, superintendent of the Idaho state police, "and each new needless death on the highways makes me madder."

Then he continues:

It could just be that you are the person who wrote me that letter the other day. You really told me off. You said one of my dumb state police had given you a ticket for speeding when you had a legitimate reason for being in a hurry.

According to your letter, which you didn't sign, you think the state police could make better use of its time by chasing down the real menaces to safety on the highways instead of bothering upstanding citizens like yourself.

Oh, you were quite indignant. You went on to say that you were on urgent business, that you never had been in an accident of your own making; that you are a fast driver but a safe driver and, moreover, that you are a more important man to the community than the stupid cop who gave you the ticket.

Well, now, let me tell you something. I'm mad, too. I'm mad all the time although my anger is not directed at you alone. So far as you're concerned, I'm happy that we were able to catch you in time. I hope we taught you a lesson, although I'm afraid we didn't. I hope we taught you something before you have to learn it the hard way in a hospital, or you wind up on a morgue slab.

It makes me feel good that we were able to slow you down before you killed yourself -- or maimed somebody else who was driving carefully to protect both himself and you, too!

What makes me mad? A lot of things. I'm burned up because people as intelligent as you sometimes behave like idiots. I've seen a lot in my service with the state police. I've had to look at things that would turn your stomach. They make me sick, too, because I'm not different from you except that it's my business to keep you alive while you're driving, even if I have to stop you and haul you off to jail.

I wouldn't have to be so harsh, perhaps, if you could see at first hand the murder and savage mutilation on our highways -- your highways.

I wish sometime you would have to go with me to the scene of an accident. I would like to make you stand, as I've had to do, and watch the pitiful flopping of a man dying in a barrow pit, or help scrape the bits of bone and mangled flesh of a while family into baskets at a grade crossing.

You'd vomit as I have done. But you'd think different the next time you got behind the wheel of an automobile.

If some foreign power killed and wounded as many of our citizens as our motorists do each year -- you would be ready to take up arms and fight to stop it.

And yet a great many who are responsible for this terrible loss of life and limb and lifelong suffering are individuals like yourself -- "fast" but "safe" drivers and "important" people in a big hot hurry.

You said the officer who gave you the ticket didn't argue with you but that his manner was insolent.

The trouble with you is that you don't recognize sincerity when you see it. Our men are under orders not to argue, but to be firm, fair and impartial. I doubt that he was insolent -- especially since he didn't argue with you. He was merely concerned -- concerned with your safety and the safety of the hundreds of others on the highway.

You say you were driving safely? That's what the woman thought a few short months ago when she overturned on an icy strip on the highway not more than 500 yards from the point at which you said the patrolman stopped you.

If that patrolman had been there and cautioned that woman before she hit that ice patch at 75 miles per hour, she would still be here; her child would have the affection of their mother and a husband would have been spared unnecessary grief and cost.

Maybe she would have written a letter of complaint, too. But I wouldn't have cared. It's only the dead ones who don't complain.

Mad again? So was the youngster down on highway 30. He had some personal reason for being mad. "I'll show you how mad I can get," he told his companions. His broken body was picked up near the end of a 500-foot skid mark. They found his head on the prairie a hundred feet away.

It's better to be alive and mad, or alive and late than dead and still in a hurry. That was the case when the salesman a few months ago rounded a curve on highway 95. He was on an important call, but he never kept his appointment. We picked his head off the paving and scraped his body together from beneath his automobile. Are sales that important? You'll never collect the commission that way. Neither will your widow.

The trouble with so many drivers is that they have dual personalities. Too often, a highly respected businessman, a geneltman in his profession and a social leader in the community, becomes a dangerous egotist behind the wheel. The respect he normally displays for his fellow citizens becomes submerged in a conviction of superiority arising from his control of two tons of steel and 200 or 300 horsepower. He blows his horn at pedestrians or drivers who threaten to interfere with his lordly progress.

Whatever lane he chooses is his exclusive property, and sometimes he takes part of two lanes. He picks any speed that suits his fancy.

He is too big to be anything but contemptuous of the traffic officer who questions his driving ability. His favorite retort is "I'll have your job for this, copper!"

Maybe you're one of these big shots and that's what's bothering you.

Or maybe you're one of the Milquetoasts -- the meek little guy who spends his life taking orders from the boss but who becomes a tryant when he's driving. All he has to do to get even with the world is step on the gas. He has as much right as anyone else and he will assert it even if it means killing himself or the other fellow.

Do you wonder that I'm mad all the time? So many of the people I do business with are downright stupid for no good reason. Yet, anywhere but behind the wheel of a high-powered machine they're normal, intelligent, thinking, considerate humans.

Then there are kids who shouldn't be allowed the use of the family car until they learn common sense.

I went home the other night saddened. I had listened to a father blubber like a baby. The last time I talked to him before that, he was lecturing me. His son was a good driver, he said. Sure, weaving in and out of traffic, digging out on the green.

Well, we had picked up the boy on two occasions and were ready to ground him for keeps. Then before we could do it, the serious smashup that we had anticipated, happened. The boy's body was being wheeled out of the operating room to the morgue when the father broke down and cried: "I killed my own son trying to prove that I was right. I hate myself."

Let me ask you: Do you believe we should allow some idiot to risk your life and the lives of your family members just because he wants to be there in time for the kickoff? Would we be doing our duty in letting him off with just a few words of warning?

What do you expect a cop to be anyhow? Do you want your state police to be a bunch of weak-kneed, jelly - spined apologists who smile at a speeder knowing that sooner or later he will cause an accident?

Suppose we allowed everybody else to drive the way you were driving when the patrolman stopped you. It wouldn't be too long until you and one of those others met -- met head on. And that would be that.

Look in the truck cab at the roasted body of a driver who overturned while trying to let a hurry-boy pass without crashing into the oncoming automobile. Smell his hair burning, experience that nausea that comes from smelling burned flesh and then tell me to let a reckless driver off easy. You tell the widow of the truck driver that. Go to her house as I have had to do, and tell her that her man has been killed because a lighthearted bunch of fun seekers were in a hurry. Look the truck driver's kids in the eye and try to explain why their dad won't be home.

You tell 'em, Buster, I'm too mad and too busy!

PRODUCTION AND SALESMANSHIP

Americans rightfully regard themselves as unsurpassed in the realm of supersalesmanship. We sell more material goods than any other nation in the world. However, when it comes to selling our belief in the capitalistic, personal enterprise system which produces these goods, our sales fall embarrassingly short.

More than a century ago, Karl Marx theorized that the ownership of industry and business should be in the hands of "the people". It is ironic that in the countries where Marx was best received, the people now own essentially nothing, while in the United States under the capitalistic system Marx reviled, the people own virtually all the land, the tools of production, and the profits! Nevertheless, Communism is gaining widespread acceptance.

We enjoy today, in this country, the most successful economic system the world has ever seen. We can produce the necessities to supply millions of people abroad but fail to prove our profit motive system works best. Is our inability to make a convincing sale of the merits of our system due to the fact that we don't believe in it? Or is our trouble simply that we are so accustomed to it that we don't appreciate it? When asked to stand up for the side of economic freedom many Americans intend to respond but appear to be busy to ever get started.

Let's take time now to count the blessings freedom brings. And if we can't tell a neighbor in another country, let's at least tell a neighbor next door. HLH

NEW YORK AP -- Twelve years ago Barbra Streisand was a beatnik kid who made 50 cents an hour as a baby sitter. Today her income is nearer a million dollars a year.

The onetime Flatbush gamin has become a show world empress.

The girl who once looked like a skinny Jewish gnome now has the grace and imperious profile of a Babylonian queen. Instead of a walkup flat she dwells in a Central Park duplex that has nine glittering chandeliers. Once she dressed like a 1925 mannequin in a lower East Side thrift shop. Now few socialites could match her wardrobe.

But as her 23rd birthday nears, Barbra finds herself still basically unchanged where she feels it counts most--inside.

"No one thing has made life very different for me," she said. "In a way I'm disappointed that it hasn't.

"What is suffering to one person is joy to another," she said in her theater dressing room from which hangs a 10th glittering crystal chandelier, the symbol of her stardom.

"I went through a lot of adolescent pangs that were critical to me, but I never had to scrub floors or do anything like that.

"I was so gawky no one would hire me as a model. So I worked as a cashier in a Chinese restaurant for $1 an hour and all the chow mein I could eat. I loved that.

"I also licked envelopes for a printing firm for $45.17 a week -- and saved $15 of it. I always was saving. The main thing I didn't want to be was a typist. I let my fingernails grow long so I couldn't type."

In addition to her stage earnings, royalties from phonograph albums and other sources of income, Barbra has a television contract guaranteeing her $5 million over the next 10 years.

"Any amount of money over 450,000 confuses me. I feel you can live as well on $25,000 a year as on a million. You can ride in only one limousine at a time," she said.

"I allot myself only $25 a week, and I never spend it all. I like to pay in cash. It gives me a great feeling.

"When I pay by check, I feel like I'm getting it for nothing--because it's just paper."

Maturity has somewhat tamed Barbra's prankishness with which she used to call attention to herslef. She remains a loner, given to introspection. Her dark blue eyes smolder with electric intensity.

Here are her likes and dislikes:

"I like Chantilly lace and avocados, scarey movies and Bartok's violin concerto. Gardenias and enameled snuffboxes, gingerbread and lavender roses, Rembrandt paintings and Thomas Mann's novels. Good shoes, the feel of fur blankets, the smell of Italian cooking, studying languages and talking to doctors; steak Diane for breakfast, the color of wine but not the taste of it; Sundays, when nothing is going on and everything has stopped.

"I dislike fake fur, arriving early to an appointment, crowded streets, dirty ashtrays, newspapers lying around, candy with gooey centers, eggs, overcooked food, opportunistic people and ladies who smell like flowers instead of like ladies."

WASHINGTON — In the Western World, great curiosity persists regarding Nikita Khrushchev — where he is, what he's doing, whether he is philosophical about his retirement. But in Moscow Mr. K. is regarded about the way Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the United States — as an overage, retired political leader. He does not arouse much interest.

This in itself is something of a triumph for the new Democratic trend in the Soviet, and many Russians will tell you frankly that they are proud of the peaceful non-violent manner in which Khrushchev was retired. They regard it as a trend toward the democratic process.

His retirement, of course, was not democracy as Americans understand it — namely, by popular vote; but rather by committee vote. However, it's significant that, if there had been a popular vote, Khrushchev probably would have been voted out of office.

Most Western observers, and for that matter many Soviet leaders, considered him highly popular with the Russian people. His wisecracks, his Russian proverbs, his fondness for mingling with the people were considered a guarantee of popularity, and immediately after his retirement the new leaders of the Kremlin were a little worried as to how the Russian people would react.

—UNPOPULAR FOREIGN AID—

But they discovered that Khrushchev was not popular at all. In the first place he had been in office too long. Second, he was charged with non-fulfillment of many promises. Third, the Russian people were irked over his foreign aid program, especially the large amount of money siphoned into Egypt for the Aswan Dam.

Khrushchev had made the mistake of talking a great deal about the new farm program and his development of the virgin lands. The Russian people had come to expect a bumper harvest. They didn't give a hang over the fact that Russia suffered a disastrous drought. Like the American people, they are interested in results. And they blamed Khrushchev for lack of results.

Furthermore, most Soviet cities continue to suffer from a housing shortage. Therefore, when Khrushchev made a big show of going to Cairo to dedicate the first phase of the Aswan Dam, it focused attention upon the large amounts of money loaned to Egypt at a time when the Russian people were forced to live with their in-laws because of crowded housing.

What really broke Khrushchev's political back, however, was a $90 million additional credit which he gave to President Nasser while he was in Cairo, on the spot, without consulting the Presidium or the Central Committee.

This was one of the big black marks against him.

—RUSSIAN NEPOTISM—

Another black mark was nepotism, especially involving his son-in-law, the likeable and dynamic Alexei Adzuhbei, then editor of Izvestia. The Russian people did not object to the minor jobs given to Khrushchev's self-effacing daughter or his inconspicuous daughter-in-law nor to the relatively honorary position held by Mrs. Khrushchev. But the top leaders did object to Adzuhbei. So also did the lesser employees at Izvestia.

Adzuhbei was brilliant, cocky, high-handed, and inconsiderate. The staff at Izvestia hated him. When his father-in-law proposed that he be elevated to the Presidium, it caused a furor both in high places and low.

Adzuhbei is now an editor of the Soviet Life Magazine, where he's writing under an assumed name and doing a good job. He has learned his lesson, isn't drinking as much, and probably will stage a comeback a few years hence. He has real ability, even genius.

These things all came to a head in October 1964, at which time some of Khrushchev's old friends in the Presidium argued with him that he was making mistakes. There had been arguments before, but never had they been so vigorous.

Khrushchev's reply was quoted to me as being: "Well, perhaps I'd better resign."

"We think perhaps you should," some of his old friends replied.

So the matter was taken up immediately in the Presidium. Khrushchev presided. The vote went overwhelmingly against him. The Presidium then moved next door to the Central Committee where Khrushchev presided again. This time the vote also went against him, though it was by no means unanimous. He had plenty of supporters on the Central Committee.

—RESTLESS MR. K—

The man who dominated the Russian scene for ten years is not taking his retirement as philosophically as reported in the press. He looks thinner and has aged.

He is living about forty miles from Moscow in a new dacha supplied him by the Soviet government. He has every luxury available — servants, two guards, automobiles. He is able to hunt, which he enjoys, and he is doing a lot of reading. He doesn't fish. He once told me that he was too impatient a man to fish.

Khrushchev comes into town about once a week to see his grandchildren. He has an apartment in Moscow where Mrs. Khrushchev resides more than he does.

The Soviet leaders were anxious to have the world know that he was healthy and living quietly in retirement. This was why they tipped off Western newspapermen prior to his voting in the recent Moscow election.

Khrushchev is now 71 and despite reports that he might stage a comeback, this is considered beyond the realm of political possibility.

History will show that Nikita Sergeyevich did a great job for the Soviet people and a constructive job for better world understanding. But even if he wanted to stage a comeback — which he doesn't — the Russian people would not be enthusiastic. It will take some time for history to make them realize what progress they achieved under his regime.

—CHINA SAYS "NO"—

Red China's scornful response to President Johnson's peace overture was coupled with a private message to UN Secretary General Thant, making it clear that the Chinese want no settlement of the Viet Nam conflict short of unconditional American withdrawal.

The word to U Thant came from Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai, who passed it on to Algerian President Ben Bella during their talks last week in Algiers. Ben Bella relayed the message to this UN ambassador, Tewfik Bouattoura, who delivered it to U Thant.

In substance, Chou let the Secretary General know that Red China appreciated his peaceful intent but that the United Nations has no business meddling in the Viet Nam crisis. Thus U Thant was discouraged from pursuing his offer to go to Hanoi and Peking personally to negotiate a truce, an offer that had the unofficial blessings of both the United States and Soviet Union.

American policymakers, trying to understand China's uncompromising attitude, have come up with this explanation:

1. The Chinese are convinced that the United States with all its massive air and naval strength can't win an unorthodox, hide-and-seek war with Communist guerrillas. Apparently, the Chinese aren't troubled over the bombing of North Viet Nam which hasn't hurt the guerrillas and wins no friends for the United States among the Vietnamese people who are being bombed.

2. The air attacks are driving North Viet Nam into the smothering Chinese embrace. Before the bombing, the wily and wispy North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chih Minh, was walking a tightrope between Moscow and Peking. But the Russians, reluctant to get embroiled in the Viet Nam war, have failed to send the heavy arms shipments that Ho expected. Result: The Hanoi line has become increasingly pro - Peking, and Chinese-minded leaders have gained a stronger influence in the North Vietnamese party councils.

3. The Red Chinese are trying to portray Uncle Sam to the world as an international ogre. The spectacle of the world's mightiest power dropping bombs on tiny North Viet Nam is grist for the Chinese propaganda mill. The Communists have been flooding Asia, Africa, and Latin America with pictures of injured women and crying children in the rubble left by the U.S. bombers.

Most policymakers believe that China prefers a shouting to a shooting war. By keeping her own troops out of Viet Nam, the Chinese enhance the propaganda picture of the big power picking on the little country.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Communists are waging not only a propaganda war but a worldwide economic war against the United States. They are trying to stir up the colored people of the world against Americans and to persuade the underdeveloped nations to stop selling their raw materials to the United States.

This is safer warfare than provoking the Americans to bomb the Chinese mainland. But if the rulers in Peking should decide that they must back up their belligerent talk with action, they are known to believe in the inevitability of the Communist triumph.

We have no objection to the passage of this bill, provided they remove from the rolls all of the illegitimates in each family or case beyond the first illegitimate child. If this bill does not do this, then we are not in favor of same, for at the present time, it is just pretty nigh impossible to secure anyone for common labor with all of the government handouts.

I'M MAD, TOO

"I'm mad, too," states A. E. Perkins, superintendent of the Idaho state police, "and each new needless death on the highways makes me madder."

Then he continues:

It could just be that you are the person who wrote me that letter the other day. You really told me off. You said one of my dumb state police had given you a ticket for speeding when you had a legitimate reason for being in a hurry.

According to your letter, which you didn't sign, you think the state police could make better use of its time by chasing down the real menaces to safety on the highways instead of bothering upstanding citizens like yourself.

Oh, you were quite indignant. You went on to say that you were on urgent business, that you never had been in an accident of your own making; that you are a fast driver but a safe driver and, moreover, that you are a more important man to the community than the stupid cop who gave you the ticket.

Well, now, let me tell you something. I'm mad, too. I'm mad all the time although my anger is not directed at you alone. So far as you're concerned, I'm happy that we were able to catch you in time. I hope we taught you a lesson, although I'm afraid we didn't. I hope we taught you something before you have to learn it the hard way in a hospital, or you wind up on a morgue slab.

It makes me feel good that we were able to slow you down before you killed yourself -- or maimed somebody else who was driving carefully to protect both himself and you, too!

What makes me mad? A lot of things. I'm burned up because people as intelligent as you sometimes behave like idiots. I've seen a lot in my service with the state police. I've had to look at things that would turn your stomach. They make me sick, too, because I'm not different from you except that it's my business to keep you alive while you're driving, even if I have to stop you and haul you off to jail.

I wouldn't have to be so harsh, perhaps, if you could see at first hand the murder and savage mutilation on our highways -- your highways.

I wish sometime you would have to go with me to the scene of an accident. I would like to make you stand, as I've had to do, and watch the pitiful flopping of a man dying in a barrow pit, or help scrape the bits of bone and mangled flesh of a while family into baskets at a grade crossing.

You'd vomit as I have done. But you'd think different the next time you got behind the wheel of an automobile.

If some foreign power killed and wounded as many of our citizens as our motorists do each year -- you would be ready to take up arms and fight to stop it.

And yet a great many who are responsible for this terrible loss of life and limb and lifelong suffering are individuals like yourself -- "fast" but "safe" drivers and "important" people in a big hot hurry.

You said the officer who gave you the ticket didn't argue with you but that his manner was insolent.

The trouble with you is that you don't recognize sincerity when you see it. Our men are under orders not to argue, but to be firm, fair and impartial. I doubt that he was insolent -- especially since he didn't argue with you. He was merely concerned -- concerned with your safety and the safety of the hundreds of others on the highway.

You say you were driving safely? That's what the woman thought a few short months ago when she overturned on an icy strip on the highway not more than 500 yards from the point at which you said the patrolman stopped you.

If that patrolman had been there and cautioned that woman before she hit that ice patch at 75 miles per hour, she would still be here; her child would have the affection of their mother and a husband would have been spared unnecessary grief and cost.

Maybe she would have written a letter of complaint, too. But I wouldn't have cared. It's only the dead ones who don't complain.

Mad again? So was the youngster down on highway 30. He had some personal reason for being mad. "I'll show you how mad I can get," he told his companions. His broken body was picked up near the end of a 500-foot skid mark. They found his head on the prairie a hundred feet away.

It's better to be alive and mad, or alive and late than dead and still in a hurry. That was the case when the salesman a few months ago rounded a curve on highway 95. He was on an important call, but he never kept his appointment. We picked his head off the paving and scraped his body together from beneath his automobile. Are sales that important? You'll never collect the commission that way. Neither will your widow.

The trouble with so many drivers is that they have dual personalities. Too often, a highly respected businessman, a geneltman in his profession and a social leader in the community, becomes a dangerous egotist behind the wheel. The respect he normally displays for his fellow citizens becomes submerged in a conviction of superiority arising from his control of two tons of steel and 200 or 300 horsepower. He blows his horn at pedestrians or drivers who threaten to interfere with his lordly progress.

Whatever lane he chooses is his exclusive property, and sometimes he takes part of two lanes. He picks any speed that suits his fancy.

He is too big to be anything but contemptuous of the traffic officer who questions his driving ability. His favorite retort is "I'll have your job for this, copper!"

Maybe you're one of these big shots and that's what's bothering you.

Or maybe you're one of the Milquetoasts -- the meek little guy who spends his life taking orders from the boss but who becomes a tryant when he's driving. All he has to do to get even with the world is step on the gas. He has as much right as anyone else and he will assert it even if it means killing himself or the other fellow.

Do you wonder that I'm mad all the time? So many of the people I do business with are downright stupid for no good reason. Yet, anywhere but behind the wheel of a high-powered machine they're normal, intelligent, thinking, considerate humans.

Then there are kids who shouldn't be allowed the use of the family car until they learn common sense.

I went home the other night saddened. I had listened to a father blubber like a baby. The last time I talked to him before that, he was lecturing me. His son was a good driver, he said. Sure, weaving in and out of traffic, digging out on the green.

Well, we had picked up the boy on two occasions and were ready to ground him for keeps. Then before we could do it, the serious smashup that we had anticipated, happened. The boy's body was being wheeled out of the operating room to the morgue when the father broke down and cried: "I killed my own son trying to prove that I was right. I hate myself."

Let me ask you: Do you believe we should allow some idiot to risk your life and the lives of your family members just because he wants to be there in time for the kickoff? Would we be doing our duty in letting him off with just a few words of warning?

What do you expect a cop to be anyhow? Do you want your state police to be a bunch of weak-kneed, jelly - spined apologists who smile at a speeder knowing that sooner or later he will cause an accident?

Americans rightfully regard themselves as unsurpassed in the realm of supersalesmanship. We sell more material goods than any other nation in the world. However, when it comes to selling our belief in the capitalistic, personal enterprise system which produces these goods, our sales fall embarrassingly short.

More than a century ago, Karl Marx theorized that the ownership of industry and business should be in the hands of "the people". It is ironic that in the countries where Marx was best received, the people now own essentially nothing, while in the United States under the capitalistic system Marx reviled, the people own virtually all the land, the tools of production, and the profits! Nevertheless, Communism is gaining widespread acceptance.

We enjoy today, in this country, the most successful economic system the world has ever seen. We can produce the necessities to supply millions of people abroad but fail to prove our profit motive system works best. Is our inability to make a convincing sale of the merits of our system due to the fact that we don't believe in it? Or is our trouble simply that we are so accustomed to it that we don't appreciate it? When asked to stand up for the side of economic freedom many Americans intend to respond but appear to be busy to ever get started.

Let's take time now to count the blessings freedom brings. And if we can't tell a neighbor in another country, let's at least tell a neighbor next door. HLH

NEW YORK AP -- Twelve years ago Barbra Streisand was a beatnik kid who made 50 cents an hour as a baby sitter. Today her income is nearer a million dollars a year.

The onetime Flatbush gamin has become a show world empress.

The girl who once looked like a skinny Jewish gnome now has the grace and imperious profile of a Babylonian queen. Instead of a walkup flat she dwells in a Central Park duplex that has nine glittering chandeliers. Once she dressed like a 1925 mannequin in a lower East Side thrift shop. Now few socialites could match her wardrobe.

But as her 23rd birthday nears, Barbra finds herself still basically unchanged where she feels it counts most--inside.

"No one thing has made life very different for me," she said. "In a way I'm disappointed that it hasn't.

"What is suffering to one person is joy to another," she said in her theater dressing room from which hangs a 10th glittering crystal chandelier, the symbol of her stardom.

"I went through a lot of adolescent pangs that were critical to me, but I never had to scrub floors or do anything like that.

"I was so gawky no one would hire me as a model. So I worked as a cashier in a Chinese restaurant for $1 an hour and all the chow mein I could eat. I loved that.

"I also licked envelopes for a printing firm for $45.17 a week -- and saved $15 of it. I always was saving. The main thing I didn't want to be was a typist. I let my fingernails grow long so I couldn't type."

In addition to her stage earnings, royalties from phonograph albums and other sources of income, Barbra has a television contract guaranteeing her $5 million over the next 10 years.

"Any amount of money over 450,000 confuses me. I feel you can live as well on $25,000 a year as on a million. You can ride in only one limousine at a time," she said.

"I allot myself only $25 a week, and I never spend it all. I like to pay in cash. It gives me a great feeling.

"When I pay by check, I feel like I'm getting it for nothing--because it's just paper."

Maturity has somewhat tamed Barbra's prankishness with which she used to call attention to herslef. She remains a loner, given to introspection. Her dark blue eyes smolder with electric intensity.

Here are her likes and dislikes:

"I like Chantilly lace and avocados, scarey movies and Bartok's violin concerto. Gardenias and enameled snuffboxes, gingerbread and lavender roses, Rembrandt paintings and Thomas Mann's novels. Good shoes, the feel of fur blankets, the smell of italian cooking, studying languages and talking to doctors; steak Diane for breakfast, the color of wine but not the taste of it; Sundays, when nothing is going on and everything has stopped.

"I dislike fake fur, arriving early to an appointment, crowded streets, dirty ashtrays, newspapers lying around, candy with gooey centers, eggs, overcooked food, opportunistic people and ladies who smell like flowers instead of like ladies."

WASHINGTON — In the Western World, great curiosity persists regarding Nikita Khrushchev — where he is, what he's doing, whether he is philosophical about his retirement. But in Moscow Mr. K. is regarded about the way Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the United States — as an overage, retired political leader. He does not arouse much interest.

This in itself is something of a triumph for the new Democratic trend in the Soviet, and many Russians will tell you frankly that they are proud of the peaceful non-violent manner in which Khrushchev was retired. They regard it as a trend toward the democratic process.

His retirement, of course, was not democracy as Americans understand it — namely, by popular vote; but rather by committee vote. However, it's significant that, if there had been a popular vote, Khrushchev probably would have been voted out of office.

Most Western observers, and for that matter many Soviet leaders, considered him highly popular with the Russian people. His wisecracks, his Russian proverbs, his fondness for mingling with the people were considered a guarantee of popularity, and immediately after his retirement the new leaders of the Kremlin were a little worried as to how the Russian people would react.

—UN POPULAR FOREIGN AID—

But they discovered that Khrushchev was not popular at all. In the first place he had been in office too long. Second, he was charged with non-fulfillment of many promises. Third, the Russian people were irked over his foreign aid program, especially the large amount of money siphoned into Egypt for the Aswan Dam.

Khrushchev had made the mistake of talking a great deal about the new farm program and his development of the virgin lands. The Russian people had come to expect a bumper harvest. They didn't give a hang over the fact that Russia suffered a disastrous drought. Like the American people, they are interested in results. And they blamed Khrushchev for lack of results.

Furthermore, most Soviet cities continue to suffer from a housing shortage. Therefore, when Khrushchev made a big show of going to Cairo to dedicate the first phase of the Aswan Dam, it focused attention upon the large amounts of money loaned to Egypt at a time when the Russian people were forced to live with their in-laws because of crowded housing.

What really broke Khrushchev's political back, however, was a $90 million additional credit which he gave to President Nasser while he was in Cairo, on the spot, without consulting the Presidium or the Central Committee.

This was one of the big black marks against him.

—RUSSIAN NEPOTISM—

Another black mark was nepotism, especially involving his son-in-law, the likeable and dynamic Alexei Adzuhbei, then editor of Izvestia. The Russian people did not object to the minor jobs given to Khrushchev's self-effacing daughter or his inconspicuous daughter-in-law nor to the relatively honorary position held by Mrs. Khrushchev. But the top leaders did object to Adzuhbei. So also did the lesser employees at Izvestia.

Adzuhbei was brilliant, cocky, high-handed, and inconsiderate. The staff at Izvestia hated him. When his father-in-law proposed that he be elevated to the Presidium, it caused a furor both in high places and low.

Adzuhbei is now an editor of the Soviet Life Magazine, where he's writing under an assumed name and doing a good job. He has learned his lesson, isn't drinking as much, and probably will stage a comeback a few years hence. He has real ability, even genius.

These things all came to a head in October 1964, at which time some of Khrushchev's old friends in the Presidium argued with him that he was making mistakes. There had been arguments before, but never had they been so vigorous.

Khrushchev's reply was quoted to me as being: "Well, perhaps I'd better resign."

"We think perhaps you should," some of his old friends replied.

So the matter was taken up immediately in the Presidium. Khrushchev presided. The vote went overwhelmingly against him. The Presidium then moved next door to the Central Committee where Khrushchev presided again. This time the vote also went against him, though it was by no means unanimous. He had plenty of supporters on the Central Committee.

—RESTLESS MR. K—

The man who dominated the Russian scene for ten years is not taking his retirement as philosophically as reported in the press. He looks thinner and has aged.

He is living about forty miles from Moscow in a new dacha supplied him by the Soviet government. He has every luxury available — servants, two guards, automobiles. He is able to hunt, which he enjoys, and he is doing a lot of reading. He doesn't fish. He once told me that he was too impatient a man to fish.

Khrushchev comes into town about once a week to see his grandchildren. He has an apartment in Moscow where Mrs. Khrushchev resides more than he does.

The Soviet leaders were anxious to have the world know that he was healthy and living quietly in retirement. This was why they tipped off Western newspapermen prior to his voting in the recent Moscow election.

Khrushchev is now 71 and despite reports that he might stage a comeback, this is considered beyond the realm of political possibility.

History will show that Nikita Sergeyevich did a great job for the Soviet people and a constructive job for better world understanding. But even if he wanted to stage a comeback — which he doesn't — the Russian people would not be enthusiastic. It will take some time for history to make them realize what progress they achieved under his regime.

—CHINA SAYS "NO"—

Red China's scornful response to President Johnson's peace overture was coupled with a private message to UN Secretary General Thant, making it clear that the Chinese want no settlement of the Viet Nam conflict short of unconditional American withdrawal.

The word to U Thant came from Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai, who passed it on to Algerian President Ben Bella during their talks last week in Algiers. Ben Bella relayed the message to this UN ambassador, Tewfik Bouattoura, who delivered it to U Thant.

In substance, Chou let the Secretary General know that Red China appreciated his peaceful intent but that the United Nations has no business meddling in the Viet Nam crisis. Thus U Thant was discouraged from pursuing his offer to go to Hanoi and Peking personally to negotiate a truce, an offer that had the unofficial blessings of both the United States and Soviet Union.

American policymakers, trying to understand China's uncompromising attitude, have come up with this explanation:

1. The Chinese are convinced that the United States with all its massive air and naval strength can't win an unorthodox, hide-and-seek war with Communist guerrillas. Apparently, the Chinese aren't troubled over the bombing of North Viet Nam which hasn't hurt the guerrillas and wins no friends for the United States among the Vietnamese people who are being bombed.

2. The air attacks are driving North Viet Nam into the smothering Chinese embrace. Before the bombing, the wily and wispy North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chih Minh, was walking a tightrope between Moscow and Peking. But the Russians, reluctant to get embroiled in the Viet Nam war, have failed to send the heavy arms shipments that Ho expected. Result: The Hanoi line has become increasingly pro - Peking, and Chinese-minded leaders have gained a stronger influence in the North Vietnamese party councils.

3. The Red Chinese are trying to portray Uncle Sam to the world as an international ogre. The spectacle of the world's mightiest power dropping bombs on tiny North Viet Nam is grist for the Chinese propaganda mill. The Communists have been flooding Asia, Africa, and Latin America with pictures of injured women and crying children in the rubble left by the U.S. bombers.

Most policymakers believe that China prefers a shouting to a shooting war. By keeping her own troops out of Viet Nam, the Chinese enhance the propaganda picture of the big power picking on the little country.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Communists are waging not only a propaganda war but a worldwide economic war against the United States. They are trying to stir up the colored people of the world against Americans and to persuade the underdeveloped nations to stop selling their raw materials to the United States.

This is safer warfare than provoking the Americans to bomb the Chinese mainland. But if the rulers in Peking should decide that they must back up their belligerent talk with action, they are known to believe in the inevitability of the Communist triumph.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't consider me crazy for asking you this but I need help badly and you are my only hope.

My mother is bald. My father has a very heavy head of hair. My older brother is rapidly losing his hair and will soon be bald--like my mother.

I am a circus acrobat. Hanging by my hair is part of my act. My hair seems to be the same heavy type that father has, but at times I become depressed worrying about the possibility that perhaps my hair will fall out like my mother's.

Should I change professions before it is too late? Thank you for your kind consideration. --WORRIED

Dear Worried: Don't be a coward and change professions, even if you should detect signs of baldness. Stick with it. Bill yourself as the world's only balding acrobat who hangs by his hair. And please --don't chicken out and use a net. I'd like to get rid of you characters who write phony letters--and the sooner the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Easter will soon be here and I would like to express my views on something that has been bothering me since last year when I attended an Easter Sunday brunch at the home of friends.

These friends have three children under six years of age. As an Easter gift the parents gave their children some baby chicks dyed shades of pink, blue and green. The children were squeezing, choking and torturing the baby chicks without realizing what they were doing.

The two-year-old threw the little pink chick against the wall as if it were a rubber ball. The mother picked the chick up and said quietly, "You mustn't do that, dear." She gave the chick back to the child who proceeded to choke it. I could not bear to watch any longer so I left.

Please, Ann, say something in your column about giving very young children live pets to play with.--S. O. S.

Dear S. O. S.: Dyeing and selling baby chicks is illegal in some states. (Illinois for one.) The penalty, however, is not stiff enough to deter a pet shop owner who wants to engage in the practice. The law reads: "A fine of not less that $5 and not more than $200, and confiscation of the chicks."

The Anti-Cruelty Society would like to discourage the sale of chicks as toys. Aside from the fact that most youngsters unwittingly abuse them, chicks need warmth (about 90 degree temperature) and most homes are too cold for their survival.

Dear Ann Landers: My uncle was buried last Thursday. When I tell you we have at least 100 relatives in this town I am not exaggerating.

This uncle was a nice person and everyone liked him. His wife is a living, breathing chunk of ice who could hold a convention of all her friends in a telephone booth.

After the funeral my husband and I went to the cemetery and then home. We learned the next day the whole crowd was invited to my aunt's house for dinner. We were the only ones who weren't there. I am very put out. Why would she do this? Even in her grief she managed to insult me. Please comment. --PUT OUT

Dear Out: Relatives and close friends customarily gather at the home of the bereaved after a funeral. It is not a party. Nobody gets invited. They just go.

Relatives, friends and neighbors usually assume the responsibility of bringing, preparing and serving the food. Your letter is a good example of how people sometimes blame others when the fault lies with themselves.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting-- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self- addressed envelope.

An elderly roue is one who has reached the age where he chases girls only if it's down hill.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't consider me crazy for asking you this but I need help badly and you are my only hope.

My mother is bald. My father has a very heavy head of hair. My older brother is rapidly losing his hair and will soon be bald--like my mother.

I am a circus acrobat. Hanging by my hair is part of my act. My hair seems to be the same heavy type that father has, but at times I become depressed worrying about the possibility that perhaps my hair will fall out like my mother's.

Should I change professions before it is too late? Thank you for your kind consideration. --WORRIED

Dear Worried: Don't be a coward and change professions, even if you should detect signs of baldness. Stick with it. Bill yourself as the world's only balding acrobat who hangs by his hair. And please --don't chicken out and use a net. I'd like to get rid of you characters who write phony letters--and the sooner the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Easter will soon be here and I would like to express my views on something that has been bothering me since last year when I attended an Easter Sunday brunch at the home of friends.

These friends have three children under six years of age. As an Easter gift the parents gave their children some baby chicks dyed shades of pink, blue and green. The children were squeezing, choking and torturing the baby chicks without realizing what they were doing.

The two-year-old threw the little pink chick against the wall as if it were a rubber ball. The mother picked the chick up and said quietly, "You mustn't do that, dear." She gave the chick back to the child who proceeded to choke it. I could not bear to watch any longer so I left.

Please, Ann, say something in your column about giving very young children live pets to play with.--S. O. S.

Dear S. O. S.: Dyeing and selling baby chicks is illegal in some states. (Illinois for one.) The penalty, however, is not stiff enough to deter a pet shop owner who wants to engage in the practice. The law reads: "A fine of not less that $5 and not more than $200, and confiscation of the chicks."

The Anti-Cruelty Society would like to discourage the sale of chicks as toys. Aside from the fact that most youngsters unwittingly abuse them, chicks need warmth (about 90 degree temperature) and most homes are too cold for their survival.

Dear Ann Landers: My uncle was buried last Thursday. When I tell you we have at least 100 relatives in this town I am not exaggerating.

This uncle was a nice person and everyone liked him. His wife is a living, breathing chunk of ice who could hold a convention of all her friends in a telephone booth.

After the funeral my husband and I went to the cemetery and then home. We learned the next day the whole crowd was invited to my aunt's house for dinner. We were the only ones who weren't there. I am very put out. Why would she do this? Even in her grief she managed to insult me. Please comment. --PUT OUT

Dear Out: Relatives and close friends customarily gather at the home of the bereaved after a funeral. It is not a party. Nobody gets invited. They just go.

Relatives, friends and neighbors usually assume the responsibility of bringing, preparing and serving the food. Your letter is a good example of how people sometimes blame others when the fault lies with themselves.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boyfriend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting-- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Bulldog Golfers Down Dexter

Sikeston's Golf team won their second game of the season, yesterday to go with no defeats. It was the Dexter Bearcats who met up with the Bulldogs yesterday, only to be defeated by Coach Dawson's Sluggers.

The wind was blowing rather strong yesterday and it was a little cool, causing the scores to be higher than usual.

The team scores were Dexter 192, Sikeston 175. Charles Stamp, was the big man again, being Sikeston's low man and medalist for the match. Charles shot a score of 41 for the match. Billy Cowan was low man for the Bearcats with a 44.

The Bulldogs freshman also won their match. The score: Dexter 229, Sikeston 210. Urban shot low score in this contest for Sikeston. He shot a 49 to pace, the Bulldog attack.

Sikeston scores: Stamp 41, Whittaker 42, Cowan 44, Vandivort 45, Matthews. 47.

Dexter scores: Jean 45, Brettinger 47, Mathes 56.

Mizzou Practices Football

It's a long time between spring football practice and the title race next fall, but a lot more passing and wide-open offense will be seen in the 1965 season — if you can take the coaches seriously.

Kansas, led by conservative Jack Mitchell, is the latest on the list. The Jayhawks opened spring drills Monday with a 113-man squad.

"I think we have better throwing and better receivers this year," Mitchell said "We're going to spread our offense and work real hard on passing."

The new substitution rules, providing for an almost complete return to two-platoon football, will permit more specialization and better offense.

Kansas is the next-to-last team to start spring practice. Iowa State's first drills are set for April 20.

Wet and cool weather has forced postponements of two seeks and more at most Big Eight camps, but K-State gambled with an early start and won. The Wildcats finished practice last Friday. K-State quarterbacks put up 61 passes in the spring game.

OSU and Nebraska plan intra-squad games May 8, Colorado finishes with an alumni game May 8, Oklahoma with an intra-squad game May 1, Missouri with an intra-squad May 14 and Kansas with an intra-squad May 15.

Fewer Fans Attend Opening Day Baseball Games

Approximately 3,000 fewer persons per game turned out for baseball's opening - day games Monday than did for the first games last year.

A total of 234,109 saw the eight games played. A ninth contest, Cleveland at Los Angeles was rained out. Baltimore and the Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

The average paid attendance for the games was 29,264. An average crowd of 34,344 saw the openers in 1964.

Largest paid crowd of the day -- 43,554 - was at Washington where Boston helped the Senators get the season started. A total attendance of 48,546 was reported at Houston for the first official league game under the Astrodome, but the paid crowd numbered 42,652.

NCAA Imposing Fewer Probations On Colleges

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The NCAA is imposing fewer probation penalties each year for football recruiting violations and to Art Bergstrom, this means the enforcement program he heads is a success.

Coaches in the field tell me the climate is different—much better than it was several years years ago," Bergstrom said. He is an assistant to the NCAA director and also served as secretary to the infactions committee.

The new climate was emphasized Monday when the NCAA Council simply reaffirmed earlier actions by the Southwest Conference. The council placed Southern Methodist, Texas and Arkansas on probation, imposing penalties in football identical to those dealt by the SWC in 1964.

SMU was placed on two-year probation and prohibited from playing in post season bowl games. The penalties against Arkansas and Texas were much less severe — one-year probation with non ban on bowl play.

The Texas and SMY probations date from May 9, 1964, the Arkansas probation from Dec. 12, 1964. These are the dates the SWC took action.

Bergstrom said the committee on infractions commended the SWC for its complete investigation, its action, and for turning over its complete file on all three cases.

The committee didn't have to make its own investigation," Bergstrom said. "This is ideal from the NCAA viewpoint because it backs up the cooperative principle."

The NCAA council completed its three-day meetings by terminating the two-year probation against Hardin - Simmons and lifting one - year probations against Kentucky, Slippery Rock Pa. State and Prairie View A&M of Texas.

The Texas SWC probation can be lifted next month, but the NCAA council couldn't act on it until its next meeting Oct. 25-27 in Denver. The Arkansas probation could be lifted this Dec. 12 by the SWC and the council could act less than a month later at the 1966 NCAA convention in Washington, D.C.

SMU's probation could be lifted May 9, 1966 by the SWC and the council could act on October 1966. The time lag won't work any hardship against any of the three schools.

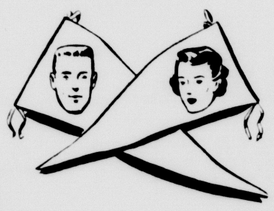
Is Your Child College Material?



That depends. By today's standards, he probably is. By standards ten years from now, perhaps not. How can that be? Is his I.Q. likely to change? No. But conditions are.

Many college classrooms are crowded today. By 1967, applications are expected to double. Low salaries are driving too many qualified teachers into other fields.

Cards Tie Cubs Flood Has 4 Hits

The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals started the 1965 season Monday in Chicago like they ended 1964 — then things got steadily worse.

The Cardinals slugged 24-game winner Larry Jackson for five runs in the first inning, but that went out the window and the Red Birds had to settle for an 11-inning 10-10 tie in a game halted by darkness.

The contest will be replayed at a later date.

St. Louis managed to hang on to some of its lead until Ernie Banks unloaded a three - run homer with two out in the ninth inning off Barney Schultz to tie the score, 9-9.

The Cardinals had one more chance, scoring on Lou Brock's hit in the 11th, but Schultz again failed in the final half of the inning. The Cardinals needed Bob Purkey to get the final two outs to save a tie after Ron Santo of the Cubs doubled home the tying run.

The teams used 13 pitchers in the game, seven by the cubs.

Bob Gibson failed to last four innings for the Cardinals and Ron Raylor and Schultz were hammered. Only Purkey and Tracy Stallard, who pitched 4 1-3 innings of one-hit ball, held the Cubs in check.

St. Louis was aided by five Chicago errors, which led to four unearned runs, and uncapped a 17-hit attack. Curt Flood had four hits and Brock and Bill White three each. Brock and Flood each drove in two runs.

The Cardinals today will send Curt Simmons (18-9) against Bob Buhl (15-14) of the Cubs.

Yanks Picked to Repeat; In National, It's the Reds

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — It's the silly time, when people want to know, "Who d'ya pick?"

The question's about as logical as people asking Rocky Marciano, "How d'ya feel?" Or Carroll Baker, "Do you like publicity?"

The Rock used to be in heavy training for a defense of his championship, hard like . . . well, like a Rock. "So how'd they expect me to feel?" Marciano would arch his eyebrows. "Lousy?"

So you expect me to say the Yankees won't win the American League pennant?

With deliberate concentration, between you'n'me and the world, this is how I figure the baseball season:

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
1. New York	1. Cincinnati
2. Baltimore	2. Philadelphia
3. Chicago	3. Los Angeles
4. Los Angeles	4. St. Louis
5. Cleveland	5. San Francisco
6. Minnesota	6. Milwaukee
7. Detroit	7. Pittsburgh
8. Washington	8. Houston
9. Boston	9. Chicago
10. Kansas City	10. New York

I suppose you want some reasoning, too. Did Richard Burton have to explain it, when he took Elizabeth Taylor for his bride?

It's obvious. The Yankees are used to winning 29 AL titles in 44 years since they got the habit in 1921. In the post-World War II era, they stand 15 and 3, including the last five in a row.

The Baltimore Orioles are pushed up a notch to second, mainly on Hank Bauer's optimism and the good health of Boog Powell.

The White Sox have to do it on pitching and manager Al Lopez's juggling.

I can't be as positive about the National League, where pennant-winning teams make a habit of dropping to sixth place. The Pirates did it after '60 and the Dodgers after '63. Cincinnati is the choice mainly because of a pearl dropped by Sandy Koufax one afternoon in Vero Beach. Best balanced team in the league, said Sandy of the Dodgers.

Philadelphia is the team to write about, with such savants as Dick Stuart and Bo Belinsky, but no one can measure the shell shock of last year's collapse, when they led by 6½ with 12 games to play and then lost 10 in a row.

76ers and Celtics Tangle Tonight

The short odds are great, the long odds murderous for Philadelphia and Baltimore in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The 76ers entertain the Boston Celtics and the Bullets host the Los Angeles Lakers tonight in the sixth games of best-of-7 semifinal series. If form holds up, there will be a seventh game in each set — and the 76ers and Bullets will be in big trouble.

The Celtics, bidding for a ninth consecutive Eastern Division playoff title, hold a 3-2 edge over the 76ers. The Lakers have the same margin over the Bullets in the Western Division finals.

While precedent is with Philadelphia and Baltimore tonight — nobody has been able to win on the road in either series — it is even more squarely against them in the long run. Only twice has a team been down 2-3 and come back to capture a semifinal set. The St. Louis Hawks did it in 1960 and again in 1961.

Koufax Back In Style

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, the mystery man of the Los Angeles Dodgers, expects to take his regular pitching turn Sunday in Philadelphia.

After a three-inning test run at Washington Sunday in which Sandy struck out five batters, there was no recurrence of the swollen elbow that sent him home from spring training.

The troublesome left elbow, which had puffed up to grapefruit size after his last outing in Florida, was packed in ice for 20 minutes after his trial in Washington. Earlier in Los Angeles he had been given a cortisone injection.

"I am going to try a new system," said the personable Dodger left who could be the greatest pitcher in modern-day baseball.

"I am going to leave out throwing between games, once I get back in regular turn. I may have to do a little throwing Friday because it will be so long between starts.

"All I know is that I have traumatic arthritis. I'll have to play it by ear as I go along. The arm felt fine in Florida but the day after I pitched the last time down there I couldn't straighten out my arm. I decided to go home and find out what it was. At least the arthritis is all in one spot and not all through my system.

"The way I felt Sunday I wished that I had tried to pitch sooner."

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers naturally was relieved.

"Sandy will be in there as often as he is ready to pitch," said Alston. "Nobody can tell how often that will be except Sandy. Whether it's once a week or every fourth day we'll be glad to have him."

Koufax, only 29, led the National League with a 1.75 earned run average last season but fell short of a 20-win season with a 19-5 record. The same elbow trouble, not then diagnosed as arthritis, forced him to miss several turns and put him out of action from mid-August on.

In 1963, Sandy was everybody's "pitcher of the year" with a 25-5 record and a strikeout record in the World Series sweep over the New York Yankees.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. AP -- Jack Nicklaus' record - setting victory in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., Sunday sent him zooming to the top of the Professional Golfers' Association money list.

Nicklaus has won $34,400 in official money on PGA sanctioned tournaments and $8,425 in unofficial money for a total $42,825. Only official money counts toward the PGA standings.

Doug Sanders was second with $30,707 in official money, $3,257 in unofficial earnings, for a total of $33,964.

Billy Casper was third with $21,948 and $20,106 for a total of $42,054.

Sikeston's Golf team won their second game of the season, yesterday to go with no defeats. It was the Dexter Bearcats who met up with the Bulldogs yesterday, only to be defeated by Coach Dawson's Sluggers.

The wind was blowing rather strong yesterday and it was a little cool, causing the scores to be higher than usual.

The team scores were Dexter 192, Sikeston 175. Charles Stamp, was the big man again, being Sikeston's low man and medalist for the match. Charles shot a score of 41 for the match. Billy Cowan was low man for the Bearcats with a 44.

The Bulldogs freshman also won their match. The score: Dexter 229, Sikeston 210. Urban shot low score in this contest for Sikeston. He shot a 49 to pace, the Bulldog attack.

Sikeston scores: Stamp 41, Whittaker 42, Cowan 44, Vandivort 45, Matthews. 47.

Dexter scores: Jean 45, Brettinger 47, Mathes 56.

Mizzou Practices Football

It's a long time between spring football practice and the title race next fall, but a lot more passing and wide-open offense will be seen in the 1965 season — if you can take the coaches seriously.

Kansas, led by conservative Jack Mitchell, is the latest on the list. The Jayhawks opened spring drills Monday with a 113-man squad.

"I think we have better throwing and better receivers this year," Mitchell said "We're going to spread our offense and work real hard on passing."

The new substitution rules, providing for an almost complete return to two-platoon football, will permit more specialization and better offense.

Kansas is the next-to-last team to start spring practice. Iowa State's first drills are set for April 20.

Wet and cool weather has forced postponements of two seeks and more at most Big Eight camps, but K-State gambled with an early start and won. The Wildcats finished practice last Friday. K-State quarterbacks put up 61 passes in the spring game.

OSU and Nebraska plan intra-squad games May 8, Colorado finishes with an alumni game May 8, Oklahoma with an intra-squad game May 1, Missouri with an intra-squad May 14 and Kansas with an intra-squad May 15.

Fewer Fans Attend Opening Day Baseball Games

Approximately 3,000 fewer persons per game turned out for baseball's opening - day games Monday than did for the first games last year.

A total of 234,109 saw the eight games played. A ninth contest, Cleveland at Los Angeles was rained out. Baltimore and the Chicago White Sox were not scheduled.

The average paid attendance for the games was 29,264. An average crowd of 34,344 saw the openers in 1964.

Largest paid crowd of the day -- 43,554 - was at Washington where Boston helped the Senators get the season started. A total attendance of 48,546 was reported at Houston for the first official league game under the Astrodome, but the paid crowd numbered 42,652.

NCAA Imposing Fewer Probations On Colleges

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The NCAA is imposing fewer probation penalties each year for football recruiting violations and to Art Bergstrom, this means the enforcement program he heads is a success.

Coaches in the field tell me the climate is different—much better than it was several years years ago," Bergstrom said. He is an assistant to the NCAA director and also served as secretary to the infactions committee.

The new climate was emphasized Monday when the NCAA Council simply reaffirmed earlier actions by the Southwest Conference. The council placed Southern Methodist, Texas and Arkansas on probation, imposing penalties in football identical to those dealt by the SWC in 1964.

SMU was placed on two-year probation and prohibited from playing in post season bowl games. The penalties against Arkansas and Texas were much less severe — one-year probation with non ban on bowl play.

The Texas and SMY probations date from May 9, 1964, the Arkansas probation from Dec. 12, 1964. These are the dates the SWC took action.

Bergstrom said the committee on infractions commended the SWC for its complete investigation, its action, and for turning over its complete file on all three cases.

The committee didn't have to make its own investigation," Bergstrom said. "This is ideal from the NCAA viewpoint because it backs up the cooperative principle."

The NCAA council completed its three-day meetings by terminating the two-year probation against Hardin - Simmons and lifting one - year probations against Kentucky, Slippery Rock Pa. State and Prairie View A&M of Texas.

The Texas SWC probation can be lifted next month, but the NCAA council couldn't act on it until its next meeting Oct. 25-27 in Denver. The Arkansas probation could be lifted this Dec. 12 by the SWC and the council could act less than a month later at the 1966 NCAA convention in Washington, D.C.

SMU's probation could be lifted May 9, 1966 by the SWC and the council could act on October 1966. The time lag won't work any hardship against any of the three schools.

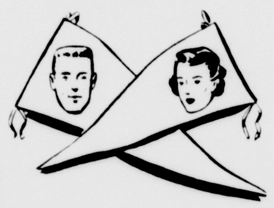
Is Your Child College Material?



That depends. By today's standards, he probably is. By standards ten years from now, perhaps not. How can that be? Is his I. Q. likely to change? No. But conditions are.

Many college classrooms are crowded today. By 1967, applications are expected to double. Low salaries are driving too many qualified teachers into other fields.

By the time your child reaches eighteen, there may not be any room for him in any college.

This is a frightening situation. Now is the time to put a stop to it. Help the college or university of your choice now. The rewards will be greater than you think.

Cards Tie Cubs Flood Has 4 Hits

The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals started the 1965 season Monday in Chicago like they ended 1964 — then things got steadily worse.

The Cardinals slugged 24-game winner Larry Jackson for five runs in the first inning, but that went out the window and the Red Birds had to settle for an 11-inning 10-10 tie in a game halted by darkness.

The contest will be replayed at a later date.

St. Louis managed to hang on to some of its lead until Ernie Banks unloaded a three - run homer with two out in the ninth inning off Barney Schultz to tie the score, 9-9.

The Cardinals had one more chance, scoring on Lou Brock's hit in the 11th, but Schultz again failed in the final half of the inning. The Cardinals needed Bob Purkey to get the final two outs to save a tie after Ron Santo of the Cubs doubled home the tying run.

The teams used 13 pitchers in the game, seven by the cubs.

Bob Gibson failed to last four innings for the Cardinals and Ron Raylor and Schultz were hammered. Only Purkey and Tracy Stallard, who pitched 4 1-3 innings of one-hit ball, held the Cubs in check.

St. Louis was aided by five Chicago errors, which led to four unearned runs, and uncapped a 17-hit attack. Curt Flood had four hits and Brock and Bill White three each. Brock and Flood each drove in two runs.

The Cardinals today will send Curt Simmons (18-9) against Bob Buhl (15-14) of the Cubs.

Yanks Picked to Repeat; In National, It's the Reds

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — It's the silly time, when people want to know, "Who d'ya pick?"

The question's about as logical as people asking Rocky Marciano, "How d'ya feel?" Or Carroll Baker, "Do you like publicity?"

The Rock used to be in heavy training for a defense of his championship, hard like . . . well, like a Rock. "So how'd they expect me to feel?" Marciano would arch his eyebrows. "Lousy?"

So you expect me to say the Yankees won't win the American League pennant?

With deliberate concentration, between you'n'me and the world, this is how I figure the baseball season:

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
1. New York	1. Cincinnati
2. Baltimore	2. Philadelphia
3. Chicago	3. Los Angeles
4. Los Angeles	4. St. Louis
5. Cleveland	5. San Francisco
6. Minnesota	6. Milwaukee
7. Detroit	7. Pittsburgh
8. Washington	8. Houston
9. Boston	9. Chicago
10. Kansas City	10. New York

I suppose you want some reasoning, too. Did Richard Burton have to explain it, when he took Elizabeth Taylor for his bride?

It's obvious. The Yankees are used to winning 29 AL titles in 44 years since they got the habit in 1921. In the post-World War II era, they stand 15 and 3, including the last five in a row.

The Baltimore Orioles are pushed up a notch to second, mainly on Hank Bauer's optimism and the good health of Boog Powell.

The White Sox have to do it on pitching and manager Al Lopez's juggling.

I can't be as positive about the National League, where pennant-winning teams make a habit of dropping to sixth place. The Pirates did it after '60 and the Dodgers after '63. Cincinnati is the choice mainly because of a pearl dropped by Sandy Koufax one afternoon in Vero Beach. Best balanced team in the league, said Sandy of the Dodgers.

Philadelphia is the team to write about, with such savants as Dick Stuart and Bo Belinsky, but no one can measure the shell shock of last year's collapse, when they led by 6½ with 12 games to play and then lost 10 in a row.

76ers and Celtics Tangle Tonight

The short odds are great, the long odds murderous for Philadelphia and Baltimore in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The 76ers entertain the Boston Celtics and the Bullets host the Los Angeles Lakers tonight in the sixth games of best-of-7 semifinal series. If form holds up, there will be a seventh game in each set — and the 76ers and Bullets will be in big trouble.

The Celtics, bidding for a ninth consecutive Eastern Division playoff title, hold a 3-2 edge over the 76ers. The Lakers have the same margin over the Bullets in the Western Division finals.

While precedent is with Philadelphia and Baltimore tonight — nobody has been able to win on the road in either series — it is even more squarely against them in the long run. Only twice has a team been down 2-3 and come back to capture a semifinal set. The St. Louis Hawks did it in 1960 and again in 1961.

Koufax Back In Style

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, the mystery man of the Los Angeles Dodgers, expects to take his regular pitching turn Sunday in Philadelphia.

After a three-inning test run at Washington Sunday in which Sandy struck out five batters, there was no recurrence of the swollen elbow that sent him home from spring training.

The troublesome left elbow, which had puffed up to grapefruit size after his last outing in Florida, was packed in ice for 20 minutes after his trial in Washington. Earlier in Los Angeles he had been given a cortisone injection.

"I am going to try a new system," said the personable Dodger left who could be the greatest pitcher in modern-day baseball.

"I am going to leave out throwing between games, once I get back in regular turn. I may have to do a little throwing Friday because it will be so long between starts.

"All I know is that I have traumatic arthritis. I'll have to play it by ear as I go along. The arm felt fine in Florida but the day after I pitched the last time down there I couldn't straighten out my arm. I decided to go home and find out what it was. At least the arthritis is all in one spot and not all through my system.

"The way I felt Sunday I wished that I had tried to pitch sooner."

Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers naturally was relieved.

"Sandy will be in there as often as he is ready to pitch," said Alston. "Nobody can tell how often that will be except Sandy. Whether it's once a week or every fourth day we'll be glad to have him."

Koufax, only 29, led the National League with a 1.75 earned run average last season but fell short of a 20-win season with a 19-5 record. The same elbow trouble, not then diagnosed as arthritis, forced him to miss several turns and put him out of action from mid-August on.

In 1963, Sandy was everybody's "pitcher of the year" with a 25-5 record and a strike-out record in the World Series sweep over the New York Yankees.

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. AP -- Jack Nicklaus' record - setting victory in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., Sunday sent him zooming to the top of the Professional Golfers' Association money list.

Nicklaus has won $34,400 in official money on PGA sanctioned tournaments and $8,425 in unofficial money for a total $42,825. Only official money counts toward the PGA standings.

Doug Sanders was second with $30,707 in official money, $3,257 in unofficial earnings, for a total of $33,964.

PATROL OPTIMISTIC OVER SEVERAL BILLS

With the baseball season now upon us, fans will be anticipating a variety of broken records during the long, hot season. And, so too, is the Highway Patrol, but its anticipation is something less that optimistic.

Col. Hugh Waggoner recently reported that final statistics for highway accidents in Missouri for last year have been tabulated and the "record" set during that 12-month period is causing considerable alarm.

For instance, during the 1964 traffic season, the Patrol worked an estimated 25,000 accidents in rural Missouri. The number of persons killed in these accidents and those in metropolitan areas reached the 1,291 mark with the property damage running well into the millions.

And, so far this year, the picture is continuing the dark, upward trend with accidents through April 6 killing 321 persons on Missouri roadways compared to 290 for the comparable period a year ago.

What's to be done is a proposition the Patrol, in general, and Waggoner, in particular, must face.

Under Waggoner, the Patrol once again is sponsoring a variety of legislation aimed at bringing safer conditions to Missouri trafficways through reducing the staggering number of accidents that occur.

The approach to solving the problem --and Waggoner notes that it's not a Missouri phenomenon but a national disgrace --is through a variety of bills, many of which Waggoner now feels stand a good chance of passage during this legislative session.

Briefly, here is a review of some of the most important measures in this area:

CHEMICAL TEST

The chemical test bill for drunken drivers, Waggoner indicated, is progressing well and appears headed toward passage. Under its provisions, persons applying for license to drive give their implied consent to the test.

INCREASED MANPOWER

A bill to increase the size of the Patrol by 145 additional troopers is now up for final passage in the Senate. The original bill would have increased the number from the present force of 505 to 750 but was cut by committee. A similar bill failed in 1963. If the bill is finalized, Waggoner said, the Patrol's strength would be increased by 75 new men over the next two years.

MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION

The superintendent noted that findings show some six per cent of all traffic accidents are caused by defective equipment. "Definitely, it has been proven that vehicles in poor operating condition are causing many accidents," Waggoner said. These defects include faulty brakes, lights, tires, etc.

Under the motor vehicle inspection bill, all cars would have to be inspected annually, within 30 days before a license could be renewed. Passage of the bill would require an additional 35 men to staff inspection stations.

MINIMUM SPEED BILL

A bill to place a minimum speed of 40 miles an hour on federal highways in Missouri has been rejected in the House and the Patrol is not too optimistic over a similar bill pending in the Senate. This has been called the slow poke drivbill and is sought by the Patrol because of the number of accidents caused by slow driving.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK SET FOR APRIL 25-MAY 1

National Library Week will be celebrated throughout the country, including Missouri, this year the week of April 25 through May 1 and library officials appear hopeful that interested citizens will take a look at what's missing in the state's libraries.

For instance, a fact sheet prepared on Missouri's present library situation, reveals some startling statistics:

While there are 225 public school libraries in existence, another 395 public schools are without such facilities.

Of the 114 counties in this state, 97 have some form of tax supported library while the remaining 17 counties are without this service. This means that over half a million Missourians have no access to library facilities.

And, Missouri public libraries apparently fail some three million volumes short of being able to meet population demands.

This is indicated by the fact that the total number of books in Missouri's public libraries today totals 6,500,000. It should be closer to 9,500,000 to meet demands.

PATTERSON SUCCESSION

It appears likely that Mrs. Margot Patterson, young widow of Missouri's late Majority Floor Leader in the House of Representatives, will be a candidate to succeed her husband. Mrs. Patterson has told Boone County Democratic Party officials that she would be happy to run in a special election to be set by Governor Hearnes. Her election would be almost assured because of her husband's popularity and the circumstances of his death.

Weighed in the Balance?

Dr. Kershner

WITHIN the last few years we have witnessed the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and the successful operation of a very aggressive Communist country just off our southern shores, the hauling down of the American flag in Panama and the proposal to give up territory we owned there while many thousands of Cuban-trained Communist subversives are fanning out throughout Latin America and elsewhere for the sworn purpose of putting an end to our type of civilization. Tragedy stalks the Congo and hovers over Malaysia and all of Southeastern Asia. We need all our resources of money and brainpower to contend with these difficulties, The decay of our own courage and self-reliance is one of our biggest challenges. We do not seem to realize that we are living in a false prosperity induced by a continual expansion of the quantity of money and credit. The little known term "trillion" must be used to describe our public and private indebtedness. No one can comprehend a billion, but it takes a thousand billions to make a trillion. Our mounting indebtedness has reached out into space farther than our rockets.

Faced with these foreign and domestic tragedies as we are, the careless revelries in Washington seem to us comparable with Nero's fiddling while Rome burned. Yes, we are even reminded of the time a similar feast was taking place in ancient Babylon when Belshazzar and a thousand of his lords were drinking from golden vessels when the hand of God wrote, "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin" upon the wall, meaning "Thou art weighed in the balance, and found wanting."

We pray that God may stay his judgment upon our country and give us yet some years to return to our senses and recover our integrity. Like Belshazzar and Nebuchadnezzar before him we have forgotten God, exalted the state in His place, prayed to it instead of to God; forgotten the Ten Commandments and indulged in deception, coveting and stealing from one another; forgotten to keep the Sabbath Day holy, to honor our parents and to abide by our marital vows. We have forgotten that God is justice as well as love and we have forsaken principle and righteousness in our international relations.

To The Editor:

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH IS BEING DIVIDED IN OUR COUNTRY.

Within the church we face a serious separation between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. Recent Alabama demonstrations have greatly enlarged the cleavage between clergymen, North and South. Southern ministers have disapproved of the visits of non-Southern clergymen in the Negroes' massive demonstrations against law and order in Selma and elsewhere in the South.

Methodist Ministers and others in the South resent visiting clergymen who blindly follow Negro leadership instead of first conferring with white ministers, local and state officials.

The people of the South realize that Negro demonstrations will bring about a more militant leadership among the fanatical fringe groups, resulting in their adoption of less non-violent methods than are used at present. Law, order, and justice in the South are in jeopardy due to the intrusion and influence of outside interests which would destroy the right of enforcement.

Visiting clergymen supporting Negro demonstrations are creating a serious and total breakdown in inter-church communications between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. As an example, the dynamics of the Alabama demonstrations point to a start in this direction.

The choice is not really that of any group, but rather, the strategy of political pressure on the political structures from the militant leaders who have lost all respect for our existing structures. These visiting clergymen who have aligned themselves with Negro demonstrations have been duped, but their influence will help to continue the present chaos.

You cannot legislate love — it must be earned. Respect for law and order will solve the problems; the solution does not lie in a rebellion against the principles of our Federal and State laws.

Long Speaks Out Against War And Aggression

Senator Edward V. Long (D.-Mo.) today said "The crisis in Southeast Asia means we must intensify our efforts to build a world where aggression and war are eliminated."

Speaking in Columbia before the Bishop's Assembly on Peace and World Order, the Senator told the Missouri Methodists "Our goal is to mobilize the world behind a plan that will eliminate the threat of war and aggression."

"If we do not," Senator Long continued, "the communist countries will try to lead us to a world without freedom."

The Senator announced he is a co-sponsor of legislation to create a plan that would look toward "solving international disputes peacefully and without military threat."

"I believe we have more need to accomplish peace than any generation before us. The threat of nuclear war is too much a part of our daily life," he added.

Already, "there are twenty countries which have the capability of making nuclear devices before 1970."

"The only thing holding them back is the fact that United States military forces are providing adequate protection," Senate Long said.

The Senator praised the Methodists for supporting the "Planning for Peace Resolution" which he is co-sponsoring in the Senate. He said passage of the Resolution would result in "the most forward - looking, progressive mission of peace ever undertaken by any nation."

Senator Long said, "As leaders of the free world, it is our solemn task to take the initiative. We must lead the world peace movement."

Many Faces Of Hard Water, All Bad

Hard water means different things in different parts of the house, says the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

In the bathroom, it's the ring on the bathtub, difficult to remove short of vigorous scouring with a heavy-duty cleanser (a practice that is harmful to fixtures). At the lavatory, it's the film of discoloration that remains when the water is drained. Here again, the dirt resists all but the most vigorous removal techniques.

In the kitchen, hard water in the saucepan is responsible for the wrinkled look and tough texture of cooked peas and beans -- and for the dingy film that remains on glassware and silverware. Housewives are particularly aware of this latter problem when they are forced to hand-towel articles before placing them on the table.

Hard water salts deposit in the form of scale on the moving parts of washing machines and dishwashers. If the layer is allowed to build, it can cause a breakdown in the equipment and necessitate a repair job -- to say nothing of the inconvenience of not having the use of the equipment for a while.

And hard water is costly in terms of wasted soap.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

PATROL OPTIMISTIC OVER SEVERAL BILLS

With the baseball season now upon us, fans will be anticipating a variety of broken records during the long, hot season. And, so too, is the Highway Patrol, but its anticipation is something less that optimistic.

Col. Hugh Waggoner recently reported that final statistics for highway accidents in Missouri for last year have been tabulated and the "record" set during that 12-month period is causing considerable alarm.

For instance, during the 1964 traffic season, the Patrol worked an estimated 25,000 accidents in rural Missouri. The number of persons killed in these accidents and those in metropolitan areas reached the 1,291 mark with the property damage running well into the millions.

And, so far this year, the picture is continuing the dark, upward trend with accidents through April 6 killing 321 persons on Missouri roadways compared to 290 for the comparable period a year ago.

What's to be done is a proposition the Patrol, in general, and Waggoner, in particular, must face.

Under Waggoner, the Patrol once again is sponsoring a variety of legislation aimed at bringing safer conditions to Missouri trafficways through reducing the staggering number of accidents that occur.

The approach to solving the problem --and Waggoner notes that it's not a Missouri phenomenon but a national disgrace --is through a variety of bills, many of which Waggoner now feels stand a good chance of passage during this legislative session.

Briefly, here is a review of some of the most important measures in this area:

CHEMICAL TEST

The chemical test bill for drunken drivers, Waggoner indicated, is progressing well and appears headed toward passage. Under its provisions, persons applying for license to drive give their implied consent to the test.

INCREASED MANPOWER

A bill to increase the size of the Patrol by 145 additional troopers is now up for final passage in the Senate. The original bill would have increased the number from the present force of 505 to 750 but was cut by committee. A similar bill failed in 1963. If the bill is finalized, Waggoner said, the Patrol's strength would be increased by 75 new men over the next two years.

MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION

The superintendent noted that findings show some six per cent of all traffic accidents are caused by defective equipment. "Definitely, it has been proven that vehicles in poor operating condition are causing many accidents," Waggoner said. These defects include faulty brakes, lights, tires, etc.

Under the motor vehicle inspection bill, all cars would have to be inspected annually, within 30 days before a license could be renewed. Passage of the bill would require an additional 35 men to staff inspection stations.

MINIMUM SPEED BILL

A bill to place a minimum speed of 40 miles an hour on federal highways in Missouri has been rejected in the House and the Patrol is not too optimistic over a similar bill pending in the Senate. This has been called the slow poke driv-bill and is sought by the Patrol because of the number of accidents caused by slow driving.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK SET FOR APRIL 25-MAY 1

National Library Week will be celebrated throughout the country, including Missouri, this year the week of April 25 through May 1 and library officials appear hopeful that interested citizens will take a look at what's missing in the state's libraries.

For instance, a fact sheet prepared on Missouri's present library situation, reveals some startling statistics:

While there are 225 public school libraries in existence, another 395 public schools are without such facilities.

Of the 114 counties in this state, 97 have some form of tax supported library while the remaining 17 counties are without this service. This means that over half a million Missourians have no access to library facilities.

And, Missouri public libraries apparently fail some three million volumes short of being able to meet population demands.

This is indicated by the fact that the total number of books in Missouri's public libraries today totals 6,500,000. It should be closer to 9,500,000 to meet demands.

PATTERSON SUCCESSION

It appears likely that Mrs. Margot Patterson, young widow of Missouri's late Majority Floor Leader in the House of Representatives, will be a candidate to succeed her husband. Mrs. Patterson has told Boone County Democratic Party officials that she would be happy to run in a special election to be set by Governor Hearnes. Her election would be almost assured because of her husband's popularity and the circumstances of his death.

By Howard E. Kershner, LL.D.

Weighed in the Balance?

Dr. Kershner

WITHIN the last few years we have witnessed the abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and the successful operation of a very aggressive Communist country just off our southern shores, the hauling down of the American flag in Panama and the proposal to give up territory we owned there while many thousands of Cuban-trained Communist subversives are fanning out throughout Latin America and elsewhere for the sworn purpose of putting an end to our type of civilization. Tragedy stalks the Congo and hovers over Malaysia and all of Southeastern Asia. We need all our resources of money and brainpower to contend with these difficulties, The decay of our own courage and self-reliance is one of our biggest challenges. We do not seem to realize that we are living in a false prosperity induced by a continual expansion of the quantity of money and credit. The little known term "trillion" must be used to describe our public and private indebtedness. No one can comprehend a billion, but it takes a thousand billions to make a trillion. Our mounting indebtedness has reached out into space farther than our rockets.

Faced with these foreign and domestic tragedies as we are, the careless revelries in Washington seem to us comparable with Nero's fiddling while Rome burned. Yes, we are even reminded of the time a similar feast was taking place in ancient Babylon when Belshazzar and a thousand of his lords were drinking from golden vessels when the hand of God wrote, "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin" upon the wall, meaning "Thou art weighed in the balance, and found wanting."

We pray that God may stay his judgment upon our country and give us yet some years to return to our senses and recover our integrity. Like Belshazzar and Nebuchadnezzar before him we have forgotten God, exalted the state in His place, prayed to it instead of to God; forgotten the Ten Commandments and indulged in deception, coveting and stealing from one another; forgotten to keep the Sabbath Day holy, to honor our parents and to abide by our marital vows. We have forgotten that God is justice as well as love and we have forsaken principle and righteousness in our international relations.

Jewell Thief Hits $20,000 Jackpot

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jewelry valued at $20,000, including a $10,000 ring, was stolen early Sunday from the home of Marvin Greenbaum in suburban Mission Hills, Kan.

Police believed the burglar had hidden in the home until the couple went to sleep before taking the jewelry from a drawer.

The regulated administration of lime juice in the British navy, begun in 1795, had the effect of virtually extinguishing scurvy, a common fatal disease caused by a deficiency of vitamin C in the food. Scurvy occurs most often when fresh vegetables or fruit are unobtainable.

To The Editor:

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH IS BEING DIVIDED IN OUR COUNTRY.

Within the church we face a serious separation between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. Recent Alabama demonstrations have greatly enlarged the cleavage between clergymen, North and South. Southern ministers have disapproved of the visits of non-Southern clergymen in the Negroes' massive demonstrations against law and order in Selma and elsewhere in the South.

Methodist Ministers and others in the South resent visiting clergymen who blindly follow Negro leadership instead of first conferring with white ministers, local and state officials.

The people of the South realize that Negro demonstrations will bring about a more militant leadership among the fanatical fringe groups, resulting in their adoption of less non-violent methods than are used at present. Law, order, and justice in the South are in jeopardy due to the intrusion and influence of outside interests which would destroy the right of enforcement.

Visiting clergymen supporting Negro demonstrations are creating a serious and total breakdown in inter-church communications between ministers of the South and the rest of the Nation. As an example, the dynamics of the Alabama demonstrations point to a split in this direction.

The choice is not really that of any group, but rather, the strategy of political pressure on the political structures from the militant leaders who have lost all respect for our existing structures. These visiting clergymen who have aligned themselves with Negro demonstrations have been duped, but their influence will help to continue the present chaos.

You cannot legislate love — it must be earned. Respect for law and order will solve the problems; the solution does not lie in a rebellion against the principles of our Federal and State laws.

Arthur C. Fulbright, Th. D.
Methodist Minister

Computer Hits One Accurately

PROVO, Utah AP -- A Brigham Young University computer that matched a brother and sister as dates for a school dance last Nov. 20 can finally claim success.

The computer also matched Sandra Kanniainen, 19, of Brigham and Dale Pearce, 22, of Nampa, Idaho.

They announced their engagement Sunday night.

Long Speaks Out Against War And Aggression

Senator Edward V. Long (D.-Mo.) today said "The crisis in Southeast Asia means we must intensify our efforts to build a world where aggression and war are eliminated."

Speaking in Columbia before the Bishop's Assembly on Peace and World Order, the Senator told the Missouri Methodists "Our goal is to mobilize the world behind a plan that will eliminate the threat of war and aggression."

"If we do not," Senator Long continued, "the communist countries will try to lead us to a world without freedom."

The Senator announced he is a co-sponsor of legislation to create a plan that would look toward "solving international disputes peacefully and without military threat."

"I believe we have more need to accomplish peace than any generation before us. The threat of nuclear war is too much a part of our daily life," he added.

Already, "there are twenty countries which have the capability of making nuclear devices before 1970."

"The only thing holding them back is the fact that United States military forces are providing adequate protection," Senate Long said.

The Senator praised the Methodists for supporting the "Planning for Peace Resolution" which he is co-sponsoring in the Senate. He said passage of the Resolution would result in "the most forward - looking, progressive mission of peace ever undertaken by any nation."

Senator Long said, "As leaders of the free world, it is our solemn task to take the initiative. We must lead the world peace movement."

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
April 13, 1915

The only county officer to be elected Tuesday was county superintendent of schools. Elmer Montgomery won a very decisive victory over Chas. D. Harris, the present incumbent. In the city election alderman elected were: C. S. Tanner, Ward 1; J. E. Smith, sr., ward 2; L. D. Randol, ward 3; and C. B. Johnson, ward 4.

G. W. Stumpp is back at the old stand with John A. Andres. He is one of the best butchers to be found anywhere.

We nominate Cousin Ed Hollingsworth and Harry Dudley to the hall of martyrdom for services rendered in boiling, dyeing and sacking 2,000 Easter eggs. After working earnestly two days last week for the kids of Sikeston they were probably just as earnestly cussed out by parents of said kids Sunday night. The "tumult and the shouting" and indigestion and colic caused by the consumption of 2,000 hard boiled eggs set in. Thus are the faithful rewarded.

Sikeston voted itself into the third - class city stage last Tuesday and can no longer be termed a village. In most respects it has long been ultra - urban in its ways. On Saturday it is really and truly a "busy mart." It has boulevard stops, a Mormon or two and at least 15 gasoline stands. In short the straws behind its ears have vanished and it bids fair to be a metropolis. Only one thing indicates otherwise and that is the habit of many of their fair sex appearing on the streets in boudoir, night and dust caps which are probably used to hide the kid curlers. We think this sign of backward villagedom should be handled by the boosters who want to see Sikeston become a Big Town and therefore refer it to the next session of the Chamber of Commerce on Monday night.

Louis C. Erdman has sold his home in Park Place and will move to St. Louis soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heely of Sikeston have moved to their new home near Diehlstadt.

Nine Sikeston High School girls will go to Cape Girardeau Saturday to participate in a play day sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association of the Teachers' College. Eight of them, Maxine Sellards, Lillian Rita Derris, Betty Belle Donnell, Lucille Hahs, Lois Hahs, Mary Ellen Johnson, Peggy Donnell and Willie Sue Alliston have already been selected. A ninth will be chosen late this week.

The Dempster Furniture and Undertaking Co., is pleased to announce that R. E. Patterson, formerly of Peetz Bros. Funeral in St. Louis is now associated with them.

Miss Ruth Inez Felker, who will be married to Garwood Sharp on Easter Sunday afternoon, has been honoree at several lovely affairs the past week. The Misses Virginia Mount and Ann Beck and Mrs. Dellar Mott entertained last Saturday evening with a surprise shower at the home of Miss Mount. On Friday Mrs. Lacy Allard and Miss Florence Baker entertained with a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at the Allard home, and on Sunday evening at the home of Miss Jane Mitchell, Miss Mitchell and Miss Emily Blanton will entertain with a dinner for Miss Felker and Mr. Sharp.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 42
Lesson No. 42
Reading time 5 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Here is another "key" to Spanish words — If the word ends in 'CE', drop the 'E' and add 'IA' to form a Spanish word:

A) decence B) decencia C) day-SEN-see-ah
A) grace B) gracia C) GRAH-see-ah
A) justice B) justicia C) who-STEE-see-ah
A) importance B) importancia C) eem-pore-TAHN-see-ah
A) reverence B) reverencia C) ray-vair-EN-see-ah
A) distance B) distancia C) de-STAHN-see-ah

Thus, such words as, 'indolence', 'indifference', 'independence', 'importance', 'impatience', etc. all convert to Spanish by employing the above rule.

Now we will give you examples of some of the many words that do not convert. They are similar — only the vowel sounds and accents change. We must begin to 'manufacture' words and, since most words are members of families, it is easy if you think of them as such. 'Look - alike words', 'mean - alike words', 'family-stem words' or prefix and suffix words are what we are referring to. The following are examples of our 'vent family':

A) invent B) inventar C) een-vent-TAR
A) inventive B) inventivo C) een-vent-TEA-o
A) invention B) invencion C) een-ven-see-OWN
A) inventor B) inventor C) een-vent-TORE
A) inventory B) inventario C) een-vent-TAR-e-o
A) convent B) convento C) cone-VEN-T-toe
A) convention B) convencion C) cone-ven-see-OWN
A) preventive B) preventivo C) pray-vent-TEA-vo
A) prevention B) prevencion C) pray-ven-see-OWN

Isn't this an interesting family of words? Notice how they are related in the two languages. It might interest you to know that they are related in most languages, as are so many, many words.

Still another family of words is the 'trans (prefix) family'. For example:

A) transaction B) transaccion C) trahn-sahk-seek-OWN
A) transcribe B) transcribir C) trahn-scree-BEER
A) transcription B) transcripcion C) trahn-scree-see-OWN

There are many, many more. You can readily see that, if you know your verbs, you can add many more words to this 'family'. In SPEED SPEECH, this is known as the "family word key". You know the family in English — all you have to know is that the same 'family' exists in Spanish, and make the simple changes to produce the Spanish words. Know your verbs, for verbs are the "keys" to languages.

Spanish Speed Speech appears in The Daily Standard as a public service. The Speed Speech course consists of a textbook, a set of two 45 rpm. records and a dictionary of working words. You may purchase any one or all three items by sending check or money order for $3.04 per each in care "SPANISH" this newspaper. Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. (John 14:27)

PRAYER: O Lord, quicken in us the spirit of courage. Strengthen us to go forth with hopeful minds to the duties and conditions of this day. Confident of Thy help, may we fashion something good out of whatever material the day will provide. For our Savior's sake. Amen.

Hewitt Burned To Death in Blaze

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The body of J.K. Hewitt, 52, was found Sunday a few feet away from a burned bed in the apartment he had rented two days before.

Police said the fire had not touched the body although the man apparently was injured by the heat of the blaze. Cause of the fire was not known.

Brandt To Talk With Johnson

BERLIN AP -- West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt left today for the United States and talks with President Johnson and other top officials.

Brandt, head of West Germany's opposition Socialist party, will remain in the United States 10 days. He will also meet with labor leaders Walter Reuther and George Meany.

Profound sincerity is the only basis of talent as of character.
--Ralph Waldo Emerson

Women and birds are able to see without turning their heads, and that is indeed a necessary provision, for they are both surrounded by enemies.

Railroad Union To Present Case

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The locomotive firemen's union which struck and shut down the Kansas City Southern Railway for more than 12 hours last week, will present its case in Court Thursday.

The union — the Brotherhood of Local Firemen and Enginemen — called off the strike Saturday after a temporary restraining order was issued by Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr., in Shreveport, La. The Kansas City Southern operates an 1,800 mile line from Kansas City to the Gulf.

The railroad's petition in federal court called the strike illegal and alleged the union had failed to submit grievances through machinery established by Congress.

H. G. Kenyon, vice president of the union, said the chief complaint is over suitable lodging arrangements at away - from-home terminals.

She has a rare gift...

It's courage.

Janice's legs are crippled. But there's nothing wrong with the rest of her. She laughs easily. Loves kid games. And she's determined to run, jump rope, dance and play like any other girl her age.

But right now, learning to walk is no picnic. Each step comes hard. Thanks to you, she'll beat her problem.

Your Easter Seal contribution last year helped buy expensive equipment to guide Janice's steps, strengthen her legs, and ease her pain. Your contribution helped the therapist and other skilled personnel at your local Easter Seal chapter.

That's why your Easter Seal contribution is so much appreciated. It gives hope and help—instead of pity. All the pity in the world won't do as much good as a single contribution. Your contribution. When your Easter Seals arrive, take the first step for a crippled child. Give to Easter Seals. As you did last year.

The first step is yours— your gift to Easter Seals

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
April 13, 1915

The only county officer to be elected Tuesday was county superintendent of schools. Elmer Montgomery won a very decisive victory over Chas. D. Harris, the present incumbent. In the city election alderman elected were: C. S. Tanner, Ward 1; J. E. Smith, sr., ward 2; L. D. Randol, ward 3; and C. B. Johnson, ward 4.

G. W. Stumpp is back at the old stand with John A. Andres. He is one of the best butchers to be found anywhere.

We nominate Cousin Ed Hollingsworth and Harry Dudley to the hall of martyrdom for services rendered in boiling, dyeing and sacking 2,000 Easter eggs. After working earnestly two days last week for the kids of Sikeston they were probably just as earnestly cussed out by parents of said kids Sunday night. The "tumult and the shouting" and indigestion and colic caused by the consumption of 2,000 hard boiled eggs set in. Thus are the faithful rewarded.

Sikeston voted itself into the third - class city stage last Tuesday and can no longer be termed a village. In most respects it has long been ultra - urban in its ways. On Saturday it is really and truly a "busy mart." It has boulevard stops, a Mormon or two and at least 15 gasoline stands. In short the straws behind its ears have vanished and it bids fair to be a metropolis. Only one thing indicates otherwise and that is the habit of many of their fair sex appearing on the streets in boudoir, night and dust caps which are probably used to hide the kid curlers. We think this sign of backward villagedom should be handled by the boosters who want to see Sikeston become a Big Town and therefore refer it to the next session of the Chamber of Commerce on Monday night.

Louis C. Erdman has sold his home in Park Place and will move to St. Louis soon.

T. H. Burchwell, for seven years employed as janitor at the Scott County Milling Co., died of rheumatism, at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Heely of Sikeston have moved to their new home near Diehlstadt.

Nine Sikeston High School girls will go to Cape Girardeau Saturday to participate in a play day sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association of the Teachers' College. Eight of them, Maxine Sellards, Lillian Rita Derris, Betty Belle Donnell, Lucille Hahs, Lois Hahs, Mary Ellen Johnson, Peggy Donnell and Willie Sue Alliston have already been selected. A ninth will be chosen late this week.

The Dempster Furniture and Undertaking Co., is pleased to announce that R. E. Patterson, formerly of Peetz Bros. Funeral in St. Louis is now associated with them.

Miss Ruth Inez Felker, who will be married to Garwood Sharp on Easter Sunday afternoon, has been honoree at several lovely affairs the past week. The Misses Virginia Mount and Ann Beck and Mrs. Dellar Mott entertained last Saturday evening with a surprise shower at the home of Miss Mount. On Friday Mrs. Lacy Allard and Miss Florence Baker entertained with a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at the Allard home, and on Sunday evening at the home of Miss Jane Mitchell, Miss Mitchell and Miss Emily Blanton will entertain with a dinner for Miss Felker and Mr. Sharp.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 42
Lesson No. 42
Reading time 5 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Here is another "key" to Spanish words — If the word ends in 'CE', drop the 'E' and add 'IA' to form a Spanish word:

A) decence B) decencia C) day-SEN-see-ah

A) grace B) gracia C) GRAH-see-ah

A) justice B) justicia C) who-STEE-see-ah

A) importance B) importancia C) eem-pore-TAHN-see-ah

A) reverence B) reverencia C) ray-vair-EN-see-ah

A) distance B) distancia C) de-STAHN-see-ah

Thus, such words as, 'indolence', 'indifference', 'independence', 'importance', 'impatience', etc. all convert to Spanish by employing the above rule.

Now we will give you examples of some of the many words that do not convert. They are similar — only the vowel sounds and accents change. We must begin to 'manufacture' words and, since most words are members of families, it is easy if you think of them as such. 'Look - alike words', 'mean - alike words', 'family-stem words' or prefix and suffix words are what we are referring to. The following are examples of our 'vent family':

A) invent B) inventar C) een-vent-TAR

A) inventive B) inventivo C) een-vent-TEA-o

A) invention B) invencion C) een-ven-see-OWN

A) inventor B) inventor C) een-vent-TORE

A) inventory B) inventario C) een-vent-TAR-e-o

A) convent B) convento C) cone-VENT-toe

A) convention B) convencion C) cone-ven-see-OWN

A) preventive B) preventivo C) pray-vent-TEA-vo

A) prevention B) prevencion C)pray-ven-see-OWN

Isn't this an interesting family of words? Notice how they are related in the two languages. It might interest you to know that they are related in most languages, as are so many, many words.

Still another family of words is the 'trans (prefix) family'. For example:

A) transaction B) transaccion C) trahn-sahk-seek-OWN

A) transcribe B) transcribir C) trahn-scree-BEER

A) transcription B) transcripcion C) trahn-scree-see-OWN

There are many, many more. You can readily see that, if you know your verbs, you can add many more words to this 'family'. In SPEED SPEECH, this is known as the "family word key". You know the family in English — all you have to know is that the same 'family' exists in Spanish, and make the simple changes to produce the Spanish words. Know your verbs, for verbs are the "keys" to languages.

Hewitt Burned To Death in Blaze

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The body of J.K. Hewitt, 52, was found Sunday a few feet away from a burned bed in the apartment he had rented two days before.

Police said the fire had not touched the body although the man apparently was injured by the heat of the blaze. Cause of the fire was not known.

Railroad Union To Present Case

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The locomotive firemen's union which struck and shut down the Kansas City Southern Railway for more than 12 hours last week, will present its case in Court Thursday.

The union — the Brotherhood of Local Firemen and Enginemen — called off the strike Saturday after a temporary restraining order was issued by Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr., in Shreveport, La. The Kansas City Southern operates an 1,800 mile line from Kansas City to the Gulf.

The railroad's petition in federal court called the strike illegal and alleged the union had failed to submit grievances through machinery established by Congress.

H. G. Kenyon, vice president of the union, said the chief complaint is over suitable lodging arrangements at away - from-home terminals.

She has a rare gift...

It's courage.

Janice's legs are crippled. But there's nothing wrong with the rest of her. She laughs easily. Loves kid games. And she's determined to run, jump rope, dance and play like any other girl her age.

But right now, learning to walk is no picnic. Each step comes hard. Thanks to you, she'll beat her problem.

Your Easter Seal contribution last year helped buy expensive equipment to guide Janice's steps, strengthen her legs, and ease her pain. Your contribution helped the therapist and other skilled personnel at your local Easter Seal chapter.

That's why your Easter Seal contribution is so much appreciated. It gives hope and help—instead of pity. All the pity in the world won't do as much good as a single contribution. Your contribution. When your Easter Seals arrive, take the first step for a crippled child. Give to Easter Seals. As you did last year.

Ready or not, skirts are on the rise again. This must be discouraging news to young women who realize their legs are as off beat as a Bob Dylan record.

Facing the facts of fashion and physique, the only solution is to make the most of a situation. Or better yet, correct or disguise knobby knees, bowlegs, thin or thick ankles.

Good grooming is the first step in covering up imperfect legs. Many neglect their legs and feet and the result often is flaky, scaly skin. Keep legs free from hair and smooth on a softening lotion after bathing. Apply this with a massaging motion from toes up to both hands. You will find this soothes aching muscles and also stimulates circulation.

Shorter skirts and the approach of summer call for special knee care. Rough, discolored knees look awkward. If necessary, use a pumice until the skin is soft and smooth.

Apply a coating of baby cream or moisturizing lotion by walking up and down stairs or doing deep knee bends. You will find this aids the over-all appearance of your legs as well as your knees.

Here are some tricks you can do with stockings to camouflage less than perfect legs and ankles.

● To make large ankles look smaller — wear dull-finish seamed stockings and keep the seams straight. Wear dark shades and also avoid bright or light-colored shoes and especially those with ankle straps. These always call attention to your feet and legs as do jeweled or intricately designed shoes. Put the bright touches at the top of your costume.

● To make plump legs appear thinner — wear longer skirts, even to the middle or at least slightly above the top of the calf. Follow suggestions for large ankles.

● To make thin legs look plumper—select light shades for stockings and skirts that are moderate in width at the hemline. An extremely full or boufant skirt may make your legs look like the proverbial pipe cleaners. Extremely narrow skirts also accentuate thin legs.

Eyewitness To Tornado In Coldwater, Michigan

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP) — The tragedy which struck a 10-mile-long corridor south of here was almost beyond human endurance. Not one — but two — tornadoes raked the area within 30 minutes.

"The first had us reeling," said Branch County Sheriff Keith Wilhelm. "The second knocked us out."

The deadly game of follow-the-leader was played by the twisters down a two-mile-wide corridor on Palm Sunday.

Two Coldwater Lake resorts were wrecked, cars were tossed from a highway as far as 200 feet and a house trailer wound-up 50 feet out in the lake.

When it was all over, the county had 20 dead, and at least 200 injured.

Even amid the death and destruction there was something to be thankful for.

The toll of dead and injured at the resorts — Pearl Beach and Crystal Beach — "probably would have been terrible two months from now," said Sheriff Wilhelm. "At this time of year most of the cottages are vacant."

Erwin Feller, a member of the Michigan State Fair Board, and his wife were in their home at Pearl Beach when the first tornado demolished their guest house.

The couple ran out to survey the damage and spotted an injured woman lying on the beach, bleeding badly. They did what they could to help.

"Then the second one came along," Feller said, "and smashed our own house."

Juel Weigh, a Branch County sheriff's deputy, was en route to check on the situation after the first twister hit. As he neared the lake, his car was snatched up by the second and demolished.

Weigh was sucked out by the wind and rolled 75 feet, suffering minor injuries.

Dazed and bewildered survivors told similar stories in other storm-ravaged sections of Michigan.

North of Grand Rapids, a raging twister plowed its way across rich fruit lands. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ingersoll were in the barn doing chores when they heard "an awful roar" and the rattle of hail. They ran to a basement corner just as a small mountain of hay came tumbling down and the roof fell in.

Their home — where they had lived 26 years — was pounded into a pile of splinters.

"Our whole life's work is gone," said Mrs. Ingersoll tearfully.

On the other side of the state, at Manitou Beach, another tornado swooped down on the Lyle Ferguson farm where Ferguson, 47; his wife, Irene, 46; their daughter, Carol Martin; her husband, Larry, and their two children were spending a quiet night.

In an instant, the one-story frame house was scattered over a quarter of a mile — and all six were dead.

Communist Guerrilla Activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high Johnson administration official said today an upturn in Communist guerrilla activity in Viet Nam is expected in the weeks ahead and the United States is concerned at what he termed a very dangerous situation.

The official, who could not be identified by name, gave the report at the opening session of a two-day foreign policy conference of U.S. editors and broadcasters.

He emphasized that there have been no indications, private or public, from Communist North Vietnamese, Chinese Communists or the Soviet Union that the Communists are ready to restrain their attacks and reach a settlement of the Viet Nam conflict.

Rejection by Peking and Hanoi of the proposed visit by Patrick Gordon Walker, special emmissary of Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson, contributed to the impression here that the Communists are following a hard line.

It was pointed out that Gordon Walker was representing Britain, which was cochairman with the Soviet Union of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conferences.

Another adverse factor was Peking's rejection of the idea that the United Nations could play any part in a Viet Nam settlement or that Secretary-General U Thant could visit the Chinese and North Vietnamese.

Top U.S. policy makers decided that while the Communist side does not want a war over Southeast Asia, they very obviously want to win Southeast Asia without a war.

President Johnson has made it clear the United States will meet its commitments and will not be driven out of Southeast Asia by military actions from North Viet Nam or Communist China, the officials point out.

A high U.S. authority said this country knows beyond doubt that North Viet Nam is exercising strategic and tactical direction of the Viet Cong guerrillas. Therefore, this source said the United States will not negotiate with the Viet Cong or with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Communists.

The list of top officials scheduled to brief the conference group included Secretary of State Dean Rusk; Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara; other Cabinet officers; AID Administrator David Bell; Undersecretary of State George W. Ball; the assistant secretary of state for U.N. affairs, Harlan Cleveland, and the assistant secretary for Far Eastern affairs, William P. Bundy.

Judge Marshall Craig Speaks To Rotary Club

The Sikeston Rotary Club had their second meeting of their seventeenth year last night at the Rustic Rock, with guest speaker, Judge Marshall Craig. His talk, among other things, concerned criminal law.

He explained how arrests can be made and the hazards to be watched for in making arrests. "In order for an arrest to be made, the violation must violate a statute. From there a complaint must be signed and a person should talk with the Prosecuting Attorney to insure that an arrest can be made."

He then went on to explain the means used in bringing a felony into court. "A preliminary hearing is held in Magistrate Court, and if found guilty the Prosecuting Attorney then files a complaint. Another means is by use of the Grand Jury, although they are not used widely. If they think that the felony should be brought into court, they serve an indictment. The Grand Jury takes the place of the Magistrate Court. On this Jury it does not take all 12 members to indict a person, it can be done with nine, ten or 11 persons."

He explained that all violaters can make use of bail, that is, unless the charge is punishable by death. However, there are cases that are punishable by death, that bail is made.

He pointed out that there is a practical proposition in parole and probation. "All persons that commit criminal acts are not hardened criminals. But if they are sent to prison, although not always, they come back feeling harder, than they would feel if they were put on probation. This thing of probation and parole is a community interest."

Judge Craig then went on to explain about making a citizens arrest. "In order for a person to make a citizens arrest for a felony committed, he must see the violation or have strong reason to believe that a violation has been committed. For a misdemeanor, the violation must be seen while in the act."

The Rotary Club had five guests at the meeting including Judge Craig. Allen Blanton, of the Sikeston Standard, Bill Jordan, Rotarian from Cape Girardeau, Bob Gehlert of St. Louis, and Jack Mahner of Modern Office Supply.

Next week they will hold their meeting at the Holiday Inn, which begins at 6:00 p.m.

Elected Chairman Of Redistricting

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Edward J. Roche, a Democratic committeeman from St. Louis, was elected chairman of the new senatorial redistricting commission Monday.

H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff, former Republican state chairman, was chosen vice chairman. Bill Esely, Bethany Republican, will serve as secretary.

The commission met first with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who urged it to complete its work in less than the six months allowed by the constitution. He told the members they would be on their own in the job of realigning the 34 senatorial districts.

The commissioners decided to go home and study the districts in their local areas as a first step. They will meet again at the call of the chairman.

The federal courts have decreed that Missouri's House, Senate and Congressional districts must be reapportioned to conform with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man — one vote rulings.

Business Is Picking Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Bad weather has put a crimp in Easter buying in many areas but merchants generally are optimistic that their cash registers will ring up record sales.

The late Easter — it comes three weeks later than in 1964 — was a favorable factor.

"It's always better for business when Easter is late," said a Denver merchant. "A woman is less apt to be in the mood to buy a flowery spring hat when it's snowing."

"We would have fallen on our faces if Easter had been early this year," said an executive of Filene's, which has 10 department stores in the Boston area. "People are like crocuses. They don't come out until the sun gets warmer."

Only a few retailers contacted in a nationwide Associated Press survey said that the heavier income tax payments which many people faced due to underwithholding had affected sales.

"Business has been — in one word — lousy," said an executive of a big Philadelphia store. "Unfavorable weather. The late Easter. Then there is this IRS (tax) thing, which must be fouling up the affairs of millions of people, and certainly not helping the economy."

In New York, David Yunich, president of Macy's, big department store chain, said, "We have noted an upsurge that indicates a big pickup this month and I expect Macy's New York to turn in about a 3 to 4 per cent increase for March and April" over the like period of 1964.

Bernard Zients, executive head of Gimbel's, another major New York department store chain, said he expects a "wonderful" Easter business and indicated the present trend shows "all the earmarks" of a gain over last year.

Rich's, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., department store, expects a 6 per cent gain over last year, according to its president, Harold Brockey.

"What Easter buying?" remarked a Minneapolis merchant when asked if much finery was moving. "Weather the last two months has killed everything but miserable weather during February and March."

Edward Marcus, vice president of Nieman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex. said: "We haven't seen that the income tax underwithholding has made any difference yet, but it might as the days get close to Easter. Styles and colors are about the same with the exception that they're a bit younger this year."

An executive of a leading Seattle, Wash., department store reported sales running between 10 and 15 per cent ahead of last year.

Sales in Los Angeles stores appeared to be better than last year for the most part.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported sales for its entire system in March were up 8.8 per cent over a year earlier despite the later Easter.

Asked on April 6 about Easter sales, a spokesman for Goldblatt Brothers department stores in Chicago, said, "They just let the Easter bunny out of its cage today." He was referring to the first warm, sunny weather of the year.

Dear Mrs. Cleek:

Just look what your letter and petition did. The Council is at least off the ground. I am, like you, hoping that we may secure good legislation in the field of Arts. Too few people avail themselves of the rich rewards of our culture and its aesthetic rewards. Since you sent me the petition I expect you to contact all the folks and keep them posted, as you didn't send me their addresses. Good luck and keep swinging.

Refuse To Stay Executions

TOPEKA (AP) — Both Gov. William H. Avery and U.S. District Judge George Templar refused to stop the scheduled executions of two convicted slayers of a Kansas farm family in 1959.

The last-minute appeals were by attorneys for Richard Eugene Hickock and Perry Edward Smith.

Smith and Hickock were convicted of killing four members of the Herbert Clutter family in Finney County in November, 1959.

The two are scheduled to be hanged tonight at the Kansas State penitentiary at Lansing.

Can't Give Son Liquor Department

KANSAS CITY A! -- State Sen. Jasper Brancato can't give his daughter and future son-in-law a liquor department as a wedding present. The school board won't allow it.

Joseph Conova, the bridegrooms, owns a food store. Brancato wants to put a liquor section in it but needed board of education permission because the store is within 300 feet of the Greenwood elementary school.

The Greenwood Parent - Teacher Association objected and so did 91 parents who signed a petition.

The board decided not to waive the requirement even for such sentimental reasons as a wedding present.

New Chief Justice

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Judge Clem Storckman is the new chief justice of the Missouri Supreme Court.

On Missouri's court, chief justices are rotated, with each one serving about 17 months, then resigning to let another judge take over the extra duties.

He explained how arrests can be made and the hazards to be watched for in making arrests. "In order for an arrest to be made, the violation must violate a stature. From there a complaint must be signed and a person should talk with the Prosecuting Attorney to insure that an arrest can be made."

He then went on to explain the means used in bringing a felony into court. "A preliminary hearing is held in Magistrate Court, and if found guilty the Prosecuting Attorney then files a complaint. Another means is by use of the Grand Jury, although they are not used widely. If they think that the felony should be brought into court, they serve an indictment. The Grand Jury takes the place of the Magistrate Court. On this Jury it does not take all 12 members to indict a person, it can be done with nine, ten or 11 persons."

He explained that all violaters can make use of bail, that is, unless the charge is punishable by death. However, there are cases that are punishable by death, that bail is made.

He pointed out that there is a practical proposition in parole and probation. "All persons that commit criminal acts are not hardened criminals. But if they are sent to prison, although not always, they come back feeling harder, than they would feel if they were put on probation. This thing of probation and parole is a community interest."

Judge Craig then went on to explain about making a citizens arrest. "In order for a person to make a citizens arrest for a felony committed, he must see the violation or have strong reason to believe that a violation has been committed. For a misdemeanor, the violation must be seen while in the act."

The Rotary Club had five guests at the meeting including Judge Craig. Allen Blanton, of the Sikeston Standard, Bill Jordan, Rotarian from Cape Girardeau, Bob Gehlert of St. Louis, and Jack Mahner of Modern Office Supply.

Next week they will hold their meeting at the Holiday Inn, which begins at 6:00 p.m.

Elected Chairman Of Redistricting

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Edward J. Roche, a Democratic committeeman from St. Louis, was elected chairman of the new senatorial redistricting commission Monday.

H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff, former Republican state chairman, was chosen vice chairman. Bill Esely, Bethany Republican, will serve as secretary.

The commission met first with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who urged it to complete its work in less than the six months allowed by the constitution. He told the members they would be on their own in the job of realigning the 34 senatorial districts.

The commissioners decided to go home and study the districts in their local areas as a first step. They will meet again at the call of the chairman.

The federal courts have decreed that Missouri's House, Senate and Congressional districts must be reapportioned to conform with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man — one vote rulings.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Will you please print the enclosed letter from our representative, The Honorable Anthony Heckemeyer?

This is the best way I know of to let the persons who signed my petition (for urging the bill on Council for the Arts out of committee) know that our interest in this bill has been noted and appreciated.

Thank you.

Yours truly,

Dear Mrs. Cleek:

Just look what your letter and petition did. The Council is at least off the ground. I am, like you, hoping that we may secure good legislation in the field of Arts. Too few people avail themselves of the rich rewards of our culture and its aesthetic rewards. Since you sent me the petition I expect you to contact all the folks and keep them posted, as you didn't send me their addresses. Good luck and keep swinging.

Sincerely,
Tony Heckemeyer

Refuse To Stay Executions

TOPEKA (AP) — Both Gov. William H. Avery and U.S. District Judge George Templar refused to stop the scheduled executions of two convicted slayers of a Kansas farm family in 1959.

The last-minute appeals were by attorneys for Richard Eugene Hickock and Perry Edward Smith.

Smith and Hickock were convicted of killing four members of the Herbert Clutter family in Finney County in November, 1959.

The two are scheduled to be hanged tonight at the Kansas State penitentiary at Lansing.

Can't Give Son Liquor Department

KANSAS CITY A! -- State Sen. Jasper Brancato can't give his daughter and future son-in-law a liquor department as a wedding present. The school board won't allow it.

Joseph Conova, the bridegrooms, owns a food store. Brancato wants to put a liquor section in it but needed board of education permission because the store is within 300 feet of the Greenwood elementary school.

The Greenwood Parent - Teacher Association objected and so did 91 parents who signed a petition.

The board decided not to waive the requirement even for such sentimental reasons as a wedding present.

New Chief Justice

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Judge Clem Storckman is the new chief justice of the Missouri Supreme Court.

Business Is Picking Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Bad weather has put a crimp in Easter buying in many areas but merchants generally are optimistic that their cash registers will ring up record sales.

The late Easter — it comes three weeks later than in 1964 — was a favorable factor.

"It's always better for business when Easter is late," said a Denver merchant. "A woman is less apt to be in the mood to buy a flowery spring hat when it's snowing."

"We would have fallen on our faces if Easter had been early this year," said an executive of Filene's, which has 10 department stores in the Boston area. "People are like crocuses. They don't come out until the sun gets warmer."

Only a few retailers contacted in a nationwide Associated Press survey said that the heavier income tax payments which many people faced due to underwithholding had affected sales.

"Business has been — in one word — lousy," said an executive of a big Philadelphia store. "Unfavorable weather. The late Easter. Then there is this IRS (tax) thing, which must be fouling up the affairs of millions of people, and certainly not helping the economy."

In New York, David Yunich, president of Macy's, big department store chain, said, "We have noted an upsurge that indicates a big pickup this month and I expect Macy's New York to turn in about a 3 to 4 per cent increase for March and April" over the like period of 1964.

Bernard Zients, executive head of Gimbel's, another major New York department store chain, said he expects a "wonderful" Easter business and indicated the present trend shows "all the earmarks" of a gain over last year.

Rich's, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., department store, expects a 6 per cent gain over last year, according to its president, Harold Brockey.

"What Easter buying?" remarked a Minneapolis merchant when asked if much finery was moving. "Weather the last two months has killed everything but miserable weather during February and March."

Edward Marcus, vice president of Nieman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex. said: "We haven't seen that the income tax underwithholding has made any difference yet, but it might as the days get close to Easter. Styles and colors are about the same with the exception that they're a bit younger this year."

An executive of a leading Seattle, Wash., department store reported sales running between 10 and 15 per cent ahead of last year.

Sales in Los Angeles stores appeared to be better than last year for the most part.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported sales for its entire system in March were up 8.8 per cent over a year earlier despite the later Easter.

Asked on April 6 about Easter sales, a spokesman for Goldblatt Brothers department stores in Chicago, said, "They just let the Easter bunny out of its cage today." He was referring to the first warm, sunny weather of the year.
